Third Train Mows Down Earlier Wreck Survivors

Tokyo Toll
142 Dead,
385 Injured

TOKYO (AP) — Two commuter trains and a freight piled up in a grinding wreck at the end of a spring holiday Tuesday, killing at least 142 persons and injuring 385.

The eerie scene of blood, escaping steam, tangled wreckage and frantic rescue was three miles north of Tokyo's Imperial Palace.

A steam freight and an out-bound electric commuter train of six cars — homeward bound with a Constitution Day crowd — sideswiped 200 yards outside Mikawashim station at 9:30 p.m.

SECOND TRAIN

Then, while stunned and injured passengers were picking themselves off the floor and crawling through smashed windows and doors of derailed cars, a second commuter train of nine cars crashed into the double wreckage.

Most of the slaughter came from the second collision.

Because the left side was blocked by derailed freight cars, passengers were crawling onto the tracks on the right side paralleling a 30-foot embankment when the second commuter train sheared through leading cars, crushing scores who still had not been able to escape.

BLUE SPARKS

One young factory worker survived both crashes with only a broken leg.

"When the first crash came, blue electric sparks filled the air and, then everything went dark; people stumbled about, wailing and screaming," said Shoji Iwasaki. "I broke a window glass and jumped out and started to climb down the embankment."

CARS CRUSH OTHERS

"Then the other train came crashing into our wreckage. The leading car toppled down and pulled four others after it. It rolled down the embankment, pinning and squashing many people who were fleeing for safety."

"It was horrible. I saw several people tossed into the air as the coach hit them."

DR. ROBERT BOEHME AND WIFE

'Victim' Defence Witness In Bizarre Poison Case

PORT ORCHARD, Wash. (AP) — A successful young doctor accused of trying to poison his wife went on trial yesterday in a case that has kept this waterfront town buzzing for months with talk of intrigue, romance and personalities.

Nothing ever happened here before like the Boehme case (pronounced Bay-may), involving the doctor, his charming wife, a pretty nurse and a handsome young prosecutor.

Dr. Robert Boehme, 41, is charged with assault with intent to kill by injecting poison into his wife's arm last September in the guise of taking a blood sample.

The wife, Dorothy, 34, says this is ridiculous. She has joined her husband in accusing the prosecutor of persecution.

Wife Scoffed

It caused a sensation last October when Walgren filed the information against Dr. Boehme. It said the physician tried to poison Dorothy by injecting an unidentified, lethal toxic into her arm with a blood-sampling syringe.

"I don't even know what this is all about," said Dr. Boehme when he was arrested. At the time Dorothy was in a Bremerton hospital where she was taken Sept. 22 — two

Reds Agree to Keep Talking But Not to Anything More

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia agreed Thursday to continue negotiations with the United States and Britain on a nuclear test ban, but again insisted there could be no agreement if the West demanded international inspection.

The three-power test ban subcommittee — part of the 17-nation disarmament conference — met for the first time in five days. The meeting allayed fears that Russia might walk out of the subcommittee because of U.S. resumption of nuclear testing.

Russian chief delegate Valerian Zorin hinted before the test series started that Russia might walk out.

Sources said Russian nuclear delegate Semyon Tsarapkin told the subcommittee there could be no test ban agreement as long as the West stuck to its "old position" that international inspection was mandatory.

Tsarapkin urged the subcommittee to agree to two basic principles:

1. Acceptance of internal control by nuclear nations themselves.
2. International inspection by invitation only.

'Europe Must Do Part' To Ease U.K. Burden

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan told Parliament Thursday that the responsibilities of the European Common Market countries are as heavy as Britain's in negotiations for British ECM membership.

Wary after an all-eight flight from Canada, which was followed by a cabinet meeting here, the prime minister was pressed in the House of Commons to expand upon his Toronto statement that if the Common Market countries "want us they will have to make it easy for us."

The questioner was Liberal Leader Jo Grimond. Macmillan said the point he had been trying to make was that the outcome of the ECM negotiations at Brussels will have a great effect not only on Britain but on the Commonwealth and the rest of the free world.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police fired four shots at him after bumping the rear fender of his car. No weapons or bullet holes were found.

The victim was Alfred Johnson, who was returning from a restaurant with a companion, Blaine Sandona, 18.

Sandona told police that as he passed Howard's car, which he described as going five miles an hour and stopping every few hundred feet, Johnson yelled at Howard. "Why don't you learn how to drive?"

According to Sandona, Howard followed the youths, ordered them from their car at pistol point, and shot Johnson.

Pegging the Dollar

THE CONSERVATIVES who took the golden west in the last general election have produced another ace in the hole for the farmers of the prairies and for the great exporting industries of British Columbia and Alberta by devaluing the Canadian dollar a further 2½ cents and by deciding to peg it there.

Henceforth, with the happy concurrence of the International Monetary Fund, the Canadian dollar will be pegged between seven and eight cents below the U.S. dollar. This means too that the pound sterling will trade consistently at about 3.02 dollars to the pound, the highest since 1950.

One immediate result is that Canadian grain farmers will receive an extra six cents a bushel under the International Wheat Agreement in which prices are based on U.S. dollars.

The advantage to the lumber, newspaper, pulp, mining and oil industries, all vital to British Columbia, will be obvious because all of these do a large percentage of their business outside of Canada and in U.S. funds.

The pegging of the dollar is also welcomed in financial circles to whom stability in dealing with international accounts is of great importance. The president of one Canadian chartered bank says the move will repopularize foreign investment in Canada.

Another aspect which has particular importance for Victoria is the fact that the lower dollar will encourage foreign visitors to Canada. With a seven to eight per cent discount on everything they buy in Canada, U.S. visitors will look on Government Street in Victoria and other tourist avenues as bargain places.

On the other hand it will be less attractive for Canadians to spend holidays or make purchases in the United States, and those intending to visit the Seattle World Fair this summer will have to revise their budgeting for the trip.

But Canada has been running in the red on its tourist business for some years. In 1960 Canadians spent about $200,000,000 more abroad than foreign visitors spent in Canada. The alteration of the dollar exchange might easily reverse the balance into Canada's favor.

However, there are two sides to every question, and the benefit of the lower dollar to the Canadian public will be achieved only if it is found possible to hold the line on prices.

For instance the higher price which millers have to pay for grain could backfire down the line to produce an increase in the price of bread unless restraint is shown.

Likewise it will be hard to hold the line on goods with a large foreign content, although this will also have the effect of encouraging a greater use of Canadian manufactured components.

The situation is interesting and full of possibilities for Canada's future, but it should be borne in mind that the position is not unique.

The Canadian dollar was at a discount of 10 to 11 cents during the war years of 1940-45, and again it touched low points of 10½ cents in 1948-50, but since then it has teeter-tottered within a five-cent range either way of the U.S. dollar, and in doing so helped to spread the view that the two dollars were more or less one and the same thing.

Now pegged at a seven to eight cents discount, the two dollars become separate and distinct once again, and if this is representative of the true value of the two currencies then more good than bad should certainly come out of it.

Place for Purists

THE PROVINCIAL decree that fly fishing only will be permitted on the main fishing stretch of the Campbell River from June 1 to Nov. 5, may not be welcomed unanimously by all fishermen, but it certainly will be regarded as a great step forward by the purists of rod and line.

Fishing in most of its phases requires a certain amount of skill, but fly fishing is an art, and a very delicate one when performed by such Vancouver Island sportsmen as Roderick Haig Brown, Tony Britton and many others.

The "fly" fraternity have long objected to the fact that they have to compete with those who throw hardware and even worse—natural bait—across the pools. Not only do these ironmongery experts tend to deplete the stocks of trout in the river, but they also disturb the waters for the Isak Walton purists.

The result is that the fly fishermen have been more or less fished out of the popular fishing haunts and have to travel far and arduously to get the uncontaminated waters they like for their sport.

The closing of the Campbell River therefore may inconvenience some, but surely out of all the fishing waters of B.C. the purists can be spared a few pools or stretches of water where they may pursue their art in a measure of peace.

Red Ear-Muffs

PREMIER KHRUSHCHEV predicted in a recent interview that some day there will be free circulation in the Soviet Union for the American printed word: "We at present not only speak different languages but understand many questions in a different way. This prevents free exchanges. But I am convinced that this is a temporary thing."

No doubt he is right, for all things on earth change. But how long is temporary, in Mr. Khrushchev's mind?

Not a short time, apparently. For how greatly the U.S.S.R. and its Communist satellites now fear to have their peoples directly exposed to the thoughts of the free world is made obvious by the extent of their efforts to prevent them from hearing the spoken Western word by radio.

While increasing their own international broadcasting particularly to Africa and Latin America—to the former by 100 per cent to 200 hours a week in 1961, according to British figures—Russia and its satellites with the exception of Poland and Albania see to it through jamming that their own population hears as little as is deemed expedient of the "broadcasts of Britain, the United States and the Western European nations."

The Soviet Union alone is estimated to have approximately 2,500 jamming transmitters, built at a capital cost of perhaps $300,000,000 and operated at an annual expense of $100,000,000.

If this is the value the Communist bloc currently places on earmuffs against the Western word, Mr. Khrushchev would appear to be only trying to seem amicable in describing the situation as temporary.

"Throwing potatoes at an inspector while he's looking you for growing too many during a shortage constitutes an offence."

A New Relationship

Rising Hope in The Congo

By ANDREW WILSON from Elisabethville

FOUR months after December's bloody fighting, Elisabethville is half back to normal. Behind cracked windows shopkeepers have put out their dress and material displays with continental chic. Motorcars punctured like pepper-pots have been repaired and repainted. The Hotel Leopold II, which I last remember in darkness, serving soup and dry bread, presented each guest at Easter with a plate of Easter eggs.

But many things have changed, perhaps permanently, from the storm-gathering days of 1961.

The first thing one notices when one has recovered from the novelty of driving openly through the streets, in the absence of mercenaries, is the absence of mercenaries. No longer do they swagger round the bars with their bush hats and sunglasses and necklaces of eagle's claws. Nor does anyone lament their departure. Before they left there were numerous squabbles among the different nationalities—particularly between Belgians and the French "af-freux," whose leader, Colonel Rene Fauquert, was finally accused of embezzling Katangese funds.

Instead, there is a new orderliness among the Katangese forces, commanded by General Norbert Moke, and his new Chief of Staff, Colonel Kiembe, formerly of the Congolese National Army in Leopoldville. Troops in the city's centre are no longer armed and policing is left to the police. Even on the road up from Rhodesia the remaining road blocks are manned, in places, by smiling unarmed soldiers in red berets, and the only martial element I passed was a group of Jeunak (Katangese Youth) marching with catapults and dummy wooden rifles.

The outward suppression of bellicosity is part of the new relationship between the Katangese forces and the United Nations—a relationship which has blossomed into amity since the United Nations made good their guarantee to President Tshombe and helped him safely out of Leopoldville.

Recently, after paying lavish tribute to the UN head, Mr. Robert Gardiner, in a speech at Elisabethville airport, Mr. Tshombe was among 300 guests at a party given by a UN Ethiopian battalion for the acting Congo force commander, General Yacub.

Later, President Tshombe said that he had not broken off his talks with Mr. Aroula, the Congolese premier, but would return to Leopoldville in the not too distant future. He now had "complete confidence" in the UN so far as his personal security was concerned, and in another conversation said that he would leave "nothing undone" to prove to the Congolese people that he wanted agreement on the country's reunification.

Another guest at the party was the powerful minister of the interior, M. Munongo, who has often been identified as an obstacle to reconciliation with Leopoldville. Reliable Belgian sources say that this is no longer so and that behind his smiling cat-like mask Munongo is now prepared to leave the decisions to Tshombe.

The truth is difficult to establish: but one fact is fundamental. Katanga needs agreement with Leopoldville as much as Leopoldville needs agreement with Katanga if the former is not to be forever the outpost of Africa. Katangese leaders now realize this. So do powerful financial interests who have begun to repair the railway bridge which may again carry Katanga's copper exports through Leopoldville to the sea.

The problem for Tshombe may now be that of carrying popular opinion with him after 18 months of anti-UN and anti-Leopoldville propaganda. Undercurrents of bitterness may suddenly come to the surface as, for instance, the other night when a well-dressed Katangese, drinking with UN Scandinavian soldiers in an Elisabethville bar, stopped suddenly in the middle of conversation, put down his beer glass and exclaimed half in tears: "But you are my enemies. You killed my 12-year-old son."

The United Nations is aware of this problem but not deterred by it. Nor is it over-worried, for the moment, by reports of small mercenary concentrations in the mining towns of Kolwezi and Kipushi near the Rhodesian border.

Its attention has been engaged by the activities of the Katangese foreign minister, Mr. Evariste Kimba, who, during Mr. Tshombe's absence in Leopoldville, carried out a tour of Baluba areas of Katanga. The tour rallied considerable support for Mr. Tshombe, including that of the wavering paramount chief of the Baluba, Kanongo Niembo. The object of Mr. Kimba (himself a Baluba) was plainly to forestall a bargain at Leopoldville by which Katanga would surrender Baluba areas to another state or province under federation. His success has thus strengthened Tshombe's bargaining hand and at the same time made Tshombe, to some extent, his prisoner.

But there is no evidence that Mr. Kimba himself is not anxious for a Congolese settlement. On the contrary, he is reported to be seeking it and it is well to observe that his tour stopped at Kamina and never penetrated the rebel north, whose allegiance is claimed by the anti-Tshombe leader, M. Jason Sendwe.

Against the volte face of Katangese African attitudes to the UN must be set that of Katanga Europeans. To the returning visitor it seems as if 1961 was a year of political malaria. The fever has now passed and they, too, are calmly that in the changing climate of Africa Katanga is unable to surround itself indefinitely with a Chinese wall. They talk of "federation," not of independence, for Katanga; and if most still refuse to believe that the UN action in December was defensive, at least they observe that it has not delivered up Katanga to Communism and anarchy.

Their state is not particularly happy. Many have left; others have suffered from a sharp fall in property values and a 70 per cent fall in the free market exchange price of the Katangese franc. House-owners in the vicinity of the Baluba refugee camp have had their villas pillaged by squatters who remain a festering sore.

But a large number with a stake in the country are determined to weather it out, accept new conditions and abstain from military adventures which have already brought so much damage.

All in all, there now seems more hope for a peaceable solution of the Katanga problem than before. But it will require a great deal of patience and, as the UN recognizes, the solution must be an African one between Tshombe and Aroula alone—so that neither side can claim later that it was subject to outside interference.

'It Will Take Ten Years'

China Biding Time in Nepal

By a Special OFNS Correspondent from Kathmandu

September, 1956, Nepal recognized the Chinese as overlords of Tibet.

For a while thereafter, the Chinese played their hand with circumspection. India's proclaimed "brotherly" relations with China acted as a shield against any overt Chinese designs on Nepal. At the same time China realized she could not entrench herself in Nepal so long as Indian interests prevailed in the Himalayan kingdom.

The break came in 1959, with the Chinese takeover in Tibet and Chinese incursions into Himalayan territory that India claims as her own. China now went out of her way to be amiable to Nepal, Bhutan and Sikkim. And in Nepal the local Communist party began to get its new office furniture.

Under the terms of a Chinese-Nepalese economic agreement, Chinese technicians were drafted into Nepal to survey suitable areas for such projects as cement factories. In southwest Nepal some of these technicians developed intriguing ways.

On occasion they would visit a local tea shop and order drinks all round, either of tea or local liquor, and costing on the average a couple of rupees. When paying the bill, however, the Chinese expert standing the round for his party and the locals would pull out a 100-rupee note and apologize for having no smaller currency. The shopkeeper, often enough, had never seen such a piece of money. And before he could begin to think of changing it, the expert would say: "Keep the change."

For the Nepalese villagers the Chinese soon became little gods dispensing a largesse hitherto unknown. There could be no question of the corruption of morals, as local Communists allege against Americans and Indians. If so change is available how could the worthy Chinese be blamed?

But in 1960 something went wrong. Chinese troops in the Mustang area killed a Nepalese soldier. In the wake of protest notes from Kathmandu to Peking, Mr. Nehru declared that any aggression against Nepal would be considered aggression against India. Two days later the Communist party of Nepal organized a large procession to the Indian embassy to protest that the Indians were making a warlike statement.

That night Peking radio gave pride of place in its news bulletins to the protest march of about 30,000. There were in fact fewer than one-third of this number.

There were a lot of villagers in Kathmandu for the market. Many of them were hired for the procession.

At the end of 1960, King Mahendra dismissed his country's first elected government, headed by Mr. B. P. Koirala, the Nepal Congress party leader, banned all political activity, and took power into his own hands. The Nepal Congress party shares much the same outlook as the Indian Congress party of Mr. Nehru, and the Indian prime minister declared King Mahendra's coup to be a reversal of democratic practice.

Not so China. Peking came out for the king, and in time was lost by Nepalese "friends" of China in hailing this as a supreme example of good neighborliness.

The Packack

Good Thing

By GREGORY CLARK

WHEN a good thing comes along," advised an old merchant of my acquaintance, "lay in a supply of it. For as soon as it is recognized as a good thing, the experts move in. They point out to the producer of it what a boon he has conferred on the public. They propose to him that this good thing should be made available to a far larger consumer public. They offer to capitalize the venture on most generous terms."

The next thing you know, the good thing is just junk. I hate to look back over my merchandising career and remember all the fine things that were recapitalized by the experts. For in business the commonest form of expert is the expert at the fast buck.

They wait just long enough for a good thing to build up a sound reputation, recognized generally. Then they move in. There is a name for this type of business operation, but I have forgotten what it is. The name I call it can't be printed in a family newspaper."

So I laid in a supply of what he was offering me, enough to last three years.

Furry Fellows

Haircut, You

By CASSANDREA from London

YOU really know you are IN the British Army when some young whipper-snapper of an officer, who is carrying out an inspection, contemptuously flicks you with his ceremonial cane and barks: "Haircut, you!"

But in spite of having endured this indignity, I belong to the "Haircut, you!" school of thought.

As chief protagonist of the "Hirsute Practices Act" which, when it reaches the statute book, will make it an offence to wear a beard or a moustache, I could hardly do otherwise.

I was therefore, pleased to see that a magistrate, Mr. Seymour Collins, has been having something to say on the subject. Eying a bunch of hairy delinquent youths accused of possessing Indian hemp, and addicted to idleness and long hair, he demanded of the hairiest of them all:

"Do you honestly think anyone is going to employ you as you are now—with your hair hanging down over your face and down the back of your neck?"

To another furry fellow with locks two inches below his ears, who said that he was looking for a job in the hotel trade, the magistrate smartly commented: "You would have to smarten yourself up! Hotels do not want long hairs in the soup."

At the same time that the magistrate was trying to get the scissors snipping, the clippers clipping, Mr. Scowcroft, who is the president of the National Hairdressers' Federation, raised an impassioned plea against the amateur barber:

"Both men's and ladies' hairdressing," he said, "is practised—and practised in the right way—by these unscrupulous partly trained men and women whose activities dishonor our ancient craft."

The president said that such people were a most serious menace to health.

That is pitching the case too high.

What we have to do first, is to get these filthy, matted locks off the addled pates of hundreds of thousands of young men.

The fancy trimming can come later.

A man who is chairman of the giant Mammals Chemicals group, and who has done everything in industry from being Lord Nuffield's (then Mr. W. R. Morris) right-hand man, to running BOAC and who can find time to wonder which way the water swirls round as it goes down the plug-hole in the bath, has my respect. Such a man is Sir Miles Thomas.

It is an odd subject of speculation, the problem being to find out whether the water-circulates clockwise in one hemisphere, and anticlockwise in the other. The best scientific opinion is that the swirling north of the equator is anti-clockwise, and clockwise below it.

Another matter of equal importance, which may interest Sir Miles, is which way runner's bones twist round their poles. I studied this carefully some years ago.

I had learned from a prominent beanologist that they followed the plug-hole theory—anti-clockwise in the Northern Hemisphere and clockwise in the Southern Hemisphere. I dispute this view.

After a series of memorable test experiments, nearly as elaborate as those about to take place in the vicinity of Christmas Island but far more useful to mankind, I found that runner beans rotate clockwise round the pole in England. This, I believe, is due to the fact that the tips of the shoots follow the sun as it moves from East to West. Presumably they go round in the reverse direction in the Southern Hemisphere.

The American Roster Magazine fears the British Heronnet Marina which, he says, carries about 81 per cent of British exports while U.S. vessels carry "only a paltry 18 per cent."

He says: "The British are planning to march on Washington again. Not to sack the city this time, but to smite our merchant fleet."

But it was his final remark I liked best.

Said the senator, who is a great baseball fan: "Let's be cricket about this. Not only let's be cricket about this, but let's bowl a straight bat, too."

This Attorney-General is issuing warrants for the arrest of Burgess and Maclean, who are strongly suspected of being traitors.

The Treasury allows Burgess to receive sterling from his private income in London. He is officially claimed as "an emigrant."

Talk about having it both ways.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 200 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

Mr. Strachan, leader of the NDP-CCF, calls for a halt on the exodus of our skilled job people to the United States. For many years this has been forced on Canadians, and many workers regret this state of affairs. But starvation at home is not a pleasant outlook, coupled with lack of appreciation especially in the sphere of art and culture; naturally we look to other fields for expansion, and expression.

Inevitable Socialists

In reference to Peter Bruton's comment on "the inevitable Socialist Party of Canada supporters handing out literature" at Liberal leader Pearson's meeting, I would like to say that so long as capitalism with the

In your issue of May 2 you have an item under "Your Good Health," a testimony of F.B.I. relating to his experience at age of 69, in having prostate surgery with success and he is now 82 years of age, thus having added years as was suggested by his surgeon and doctor at time of operation. I would like to add my personal experience, having undergone surgery for the same complaint Dec. 15, 1960, at age of 86 and am of course in my 88th year with a measure of fair health. I would be glad to offer encouragement to men of my age requiring such medical care.

John D Feels Strain Of Travel Troubles

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, berthed aboard his chartered airliner, headed back to Ottawa early yesterday, worn by travel troubles but warmed by western Newfoundland crowds after a two-day election swing to the island province.

Newfoundlanders turned out by the generally enthusiastic hundreds Wednesday night at two meetings, some 500 here early in the evening and 600 over 65 miles of dust-blown roads to a meeting.

A group of hecklers detracted little from the success of Diefenbaker's excursion into Humber St. George riding, held by Liberal Herman Batten in the outgoing parliament.

The windup was satisfying for the prime minister to an otherwise ill-starred campaign swing through this mainly Liberal island.

Bad weather and plane troubles wiped out large chunks of his tour plans at St. John's and sent him by car over 65 miles of dust-blown roads to a meeting.

Mr. Douglas, just back from a strenuous campaign trip through Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, was at home in bed, his telephone disconnected.

Sacred Support

'Dollar Peg Wise But Overdue'

The Conservative government's action in pegging Canada's dollar at 92.5 cents in terms of U.S. money won conditional support last night from B.C.'s Public Works Minister W. N. Chant.

'SAME MOVE'

Speaking to a Social Credit nominating convention which had just picked James Audin to seek the Victoria federal constituency vote in the June election, Mr. Chant said the move was a wise one—but overdue.

"For several years now, Social Credit has been advocating precisely this same move. We have contended that the dollar should be pegged at 10 per cent less than U.S. money to ease hardship on our export trade."

WILL IMPROVE

Canada, Mr. Chant said, produces goods far in excess of her ability to consume and the parity dollar had made export goods difficult to dispose of efficiently.

"Trade, commerce and the general level of employment will improve," he said, "but let us not be fooled into thinking that full employment is the political panacea our old-line parties would have you believe."

KEY TO PROSPERITY

While he emphasized that full employment was a desirable goal, Mr. Chant didn't see it as an end in itself.

'We'll Deal with the NDP'

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson told two Saskatchewan audiences Thursday that a Progressive Conservative defeat June 18 is the best way to remove the New Democratic Party from the national scene.

A Liberal government "will deal with the NDP," Mr. Pearson said in appearances at Yorkton and Melville. He travelled by charter aircraft and car after spending Wednesday in Alberta and B.C. He was to make a major agricultural address at Weyburn Thursday night.

The Liberal leader was met at Yorkton by provincial Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher and Hazen Argue, the CCF member of Parliament for 17 years, who bolted recently to the Liberal party. Mr. Argue seeks re-election in Assiniboia.

At a Yorkton luncheon of about 50 people, Mr. Thatcher dwelt briefly on the resignation of Walter Erb Thursday from the Saskatchewan CCF cabinet and party. He suggested that only NDP leader Douglas stands a chance of election in the province, and "even he is in trouble."

130 GATHER

The party drove later to this centre, long held by the late James G. Gardiner, who died early this year. The former federal agriculture minister was defeated in 1958 by a Conservative.

About 130 people were gathered in the city hall for the afternoon address.

"Our major opponents and our minor opponents will both have had luck June 18 and that will be Canada's good luck," Mr. Pearson said.

Garden Notes

Her Parents Missing

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Seems to me that the really smart gardener—the greenthumb with a thirst for knowledge and a heaven-sent curiosity—will be taking a little holiday from the hoeing and planting today and tomorrow to treat himself to one or more of the garden tours organized by the Victoria Horticultural Society. I don't think there is any better way to pick up useful hints on plants and gardening techniques than by visiting a few really fine gardens, preferably with a knowledgeable guide who knows his plants and can answer your questions.

The Spring Garden Festival, which attracts numbers of keen gardeners from the mainland and from across the border, consists of a number of conducted tours of the finest gardens in this area. The festival got under way yesterday, and there is a tour this afternoon at one o'clock, and another at same time tomorrow. Each tour includes four or five gardens, winding up around 3.30 p.m.

The cost is only $1.75 for each tour, which includes transportation by chartered bus from the Spring Garden Festival headquarters at the C & C Taxi office, 806 Government Street.

As you have probably gathered from my last few columns, I am pretty enthusiastic over the new Plus X hybrid zinnia, and I am most anxious that every reader who has a few square feet of space to spare should give it a try this year. Here is a flower which can be grown from seed without any fussing or coddling at all, yet producing a bloom which resembles in shape and coloring an expensive shaggy hothouse chrysanthemum.

Nobody knows the parentage of the Plus X zinnia, but it is obviously a hybrid, and due to their hybrid vigor, the plants shoot up like weeds from seeds simply popped in the ground outdoors. Sow, by preference, in the spot where they are to bloom, for while zinnias can be transplanted successfully, they are better off if they can go through life undisturbed. If you can scrounge a number of empty jam jars from the fruit cupboard, cover each seed at it is sown. This brings them up in a great hurry and gets the seedlings planted off to a good start.

Like tomato plants and African violets, the Plus X zinnias perform best when the foliage is kept dry and water applied only to the roots. The odd bit of rain isn't going to hurt them, of course, and a refreshing fine mist of plain water from a sprayer is beneficial, but constant and heavy overhead watering with cold water can bring on a frightful attack of mildew, and you'll have to give your plants a squirt of sulphur or rose dust to combat this infection.

What they really like is for you to take the nozzle off the hose and allow it to trickle, ever so slowly, on the ground between the plants. A heavy mulch of peat moss, sawdust or lawn mowings helps conserve moisture in the soil and makes quite a difference to the health of the plants.

When you cut the big, shaggy chrysanthemum-like flowers for the house, be sure to strip off all the lower leaves before you put the stems in water. Zinnia foliage submerged in a vase of water will foul the water and set up an odor like that of a backed-up sewer. A little Floralife in the water is a big help in keeping the water sweet and making the blooms last.

If you haven't written in for your free packet of Plus X zinnia seeds yet, I suggest you get the letter away this weekend for sure. Or if you are not in the mood to write a letter, you can use the order form at the foot of this column. Don't forget the stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Death to All Armies, But...

ATHENS—The problems of disarmament are on everybody's mind, not only among the nuclear powers, but also among the smaller nations. The difficulties of getting a disarmament agreement of any kind can best be illustrated by a talk we had the other day with our good Greek friend, Karageorgi, as we sat down at a table down by the harbor of Piraeus.

Karageorgi was looking out in the harbor where there were several American naval ships anchored, filled to the brim with American Marines. "It must be very expensive," said Karageorgi, "to keep those ships at sea."

"Very expensive," we agreed. "That aircraft carrier alone costs about $50,000,000." "Wouldn't it be wonderful," said our friend Karageorgi, "if nobody had to keep up a military establishment—if all the money that was spent on arms went instead to the people?"

"A beautiful thought, Karageorgi," we said. "Wouldn't it be wonderful if we didn't have to support a navy or an army or an air force?" "And nobody had to test atomic weapons," Karageorgi said.

"We would find work for the officers and enlisted men so they would not be mad that there were no armed forces any more," we said.

Karageorgi said, "We would throw all the guns into the sea, and we would roll the cannons off the mountain tops."

"We would sink the aircraft carriers," we said. "Or make them into hotels for tourists."

"We would blow up the missile sites," Karageorgi said, "and smash the planes into scrap."

"You are a civilized man, Karageorgi, and I only wish everyone thought as you did," we said.

"I only speak the words of every man. The military arms race is ridiculous!"

"Death to all armies!" we said.

Karageorgi was about to drink when his face darkened and he said, "Of course, we would have to keep some troops up along the Bulgarian border or those dirty Bulgars will be sure to attack us."

"But suppose they don't have an army also?"

"Aha," said Karageorgi, "that shows you don't know the Bulgars. Even if they said they didn't have an army, you can be sure they would arm secretly."

"All right," we said, "you can have some troops on the Bulgarian border. But outside of that, death to all armies."

"And what about the Albanian border?" Karageorgi said fiercely.

"You think we Greeks would leave the Albanian border unprotected?"

"It's a point," we said. "But you must promise to disarm everywhere else."

"It's all right for you to say," Karageorgi said angrily, "because you're not faced with hostile Yugoslavs and power-mad Turks who would drive us all into the sea if we let them. It is not for us to give up our armies. We must in fact become stronger. Now if we had atomic weapons we would feel much safer. You should give us nuclear weapons so our enemies won't dare attack us."

"But Karageorgi," we pleaded, "we can't have disarmament if we give everyone nuclear weapons."

"I spit on your nuclear weapons," Karageorgi said fiercely. "The Greeks have enemies all around them and you talk about disarmament!"

"Please, Karageorgi," we begged, "don't get angry. What is it you want from us?"

Karageorgi calmed down a little. "I want to see the Bulgars out there can you spare?"

Horror in Cash Register

I chatted with horror-movie producer Jimmy Carreras and when I asked, "Why do you make these frightening films?" he replied: "Strictly for the money. They're very profitable." Carreras has just completed a remake of Phantom of the Opera, with Herbert Ross in the role created by the late Lon Chaney. Coming up is The Old Dark House, with Tom Poston and Robert Morley. Horror-film director is William Castle, who was so blue on the day he arrived here with his wife and children, because of the grey skies, that he wanted to fly right back to Hollywood. Next day the sun was shining on a beautiful English spring day, and William unpacked.

Eleanor Parker made a big hit with the British when she passed through here on her way to Rome, with her four good-looking children and husband, painter Paul Clemens.

Sunday Mariners

Distress Patrol Starts in Strait

A lone plane will skim over the waters of Georgia Strait Sunday evening with its pilot looking for weekend mariners in distress.

It will be the start of a special summer marine patrol aimed at bringing search and rescue forces into action quickly if someone is in trouble at sea.

All smaller craft operators are asked to co-operate by preparing and carrying with them a standard distress signal to attach to a hatch or cabin top in case of emergency.

The distress signal is a fluorescent orange-red flag 72 inches by 45 inches with an 18-inch black circle above an 18-inch black square.

From now until Sept. 30, a single-engine, float-equipped

Other aircraft will leave Sea Island at 5 p.m. every Sunday evening or final day of a holiday weekend, for a two-hour flight.

Its pilot, a member of 19 Wing RCAF active reserve, will fly from Sea Island to Active Pass between Galiano and Mayne Islands.

Flying only 300 feet above the water and 1,000 feet above land, he will turn northward to Silva Bay on Gabriola Island and then fly to Point Grey, to Point Atkinson, around Bowen Island up the coast to Thormanby Island and back to the airport.

The pilot will be in touch by radio with the RCAF Rescue Co-ordination Centre in Vancouver and will report marine craft in distress, weather and sea conditions and concentration areas of marine craft.

Wait Masey is in Europe with his new production Escapade in Florence, about an American student who steals priceless paintings. These thefts have happened so often in real life in recent years such thievery is now a popular movie subject. Rex Harrison and Rita Hayworth starred in a movie on picture stealing.

It was two years ago Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip promised Sam Goldwyn to attend the charity premiere of his Porgy and Bess. And in spite of the delay, they will not, I'm told in London, go back on their promise. South Pacific, the picture holding everything up, is currently earning between $15,000 and $20,000 a week.

Everyone seems to have broken a leg while skiing this past winter, and among the worst is Mrs. David Niven's. David had her flown to Oxford where she is immobilized, strapped to a board. She has the same doctor who treated the present Marchioness of Blandford who fractured her leg so badly when she was Mrs. Tina Osmont. John Dassin's agent, Alan Bernstein, fractured his leg in 12 places—skiing. Dassin, by the way, is finally getting ready for his pet film project based on the life of Pericles. He'll make it in Athens, of course. And probably with Melina Mercouri.

The man who is causing almost as much talk in Rome as Richard Burton is handsome, 28-year-old ex-football star Ron Gorton, who is producing the Jayne Mansfield-Maurice Chevalier film, The Pastic Button. Nothing seems to deter this dynamic male, who is reportedly turning Rome upside down. He loves the ladies—almost as much as Burton.

Julie Andrews will put up a battle to play Eliza in the movie version of My Fair Lady. She believes her chief competition will be Audrey Hepburn. Julie is flying to Hollywood with husband Tony Walton to present her case in person.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Adv.

Mayor Invites Wilson

The mayor of Victoria, 1962, is inviting to dinner this centennial year the grandson of the mayor of Victoria, 1862.

Harold Wilson's grandfather was Thomas Harris, the city's first mayor a century ago.

Mayor R. B. Wilson has sent invitations to more than 350 men and women who were in Victoria in 1862 or before.

HIS MOTHER

Among His Worship's guests will be his mother, Mrs. Biggerstaff Wilson, and his aunt, Mrs. Goulding Wilson, the former daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ludwig Erb, and the latter a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dixie Ross.

Mayor Harris' grandson, though his name is Wilson, is no relation to Mayor Wilson's family. But their grandfathers, William Wilson and Thomas Harris, were fellow townsmen in the Victoria of 1862.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Mayor Wilson has invited as special guests Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes and Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett.

The dinner will be held at the Empress Hotel.

Births Must Drop

VANCOUVER (CP) — Biologist and author Sir Julian Huxley said Wednesday the world would be better off if it devoted a fraction of the money spent on atomic research and space flights to finding out how to control the birth rate.

He said world population is growing by 50,000,000 a year, a rate that will see it double in 20 years.

"We can't do that and keep up," said Sir Julian, here to speak to the Vancouver Canadian Club.

Without a slowdown, millions will be without jobs, and millions will die of famine and disease, he said.

Shamrocks Victimized, 23-0 In League's First Shutout

NEW WESTMINSTER—Les Norman of New Westminster, all-star goalie every season since he stepped into senior competition in 1959, made lacrosse history here last night, blanking Victoria Shamrocks, 23-0, to post the first shutout in the history of the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

With his teammates in devastating form in this meeting of the league's two unbeaten clubs, Norman was a coldly efficient master in the nets, stopping 27 shots. Meanwhile, the Royals were pouring 63 shots at Gordie Johnston, who went all the way in goal for Shamrocks.

DON HAD ONE—Only one other shutout is listed on the league records. That one was in the 1961 playoffs, when Don Hamilton of Vancouver beat Brampton, 13-0, in the third game of the Mann Cup Canadian final.

Shamrocks went into the battle for first place without Tom Collett, Don Ashbee and Skip MacKay, and were out of their depth from the start against a club that looks even stronger than it did last year when it opened with 13 straight victories.

It was 6-0 at the end of the first quarter, 11-0 at the half, and 15-0 going into the final 15 minutes. Royals gave Norman plenty of help, but refused to play defensive ball in that last quarter, romping through the Royals for eight more goals.

PAUL PARNELL TOPS—Paul Parnell, who went from Shamrocks to New Westminster last season, scored five goals. Mike Gates, Bill Wilkes and Cliff Sepka each scored three, rookie Jim Watson, Charlie Saunders and Dave Torgy got two apiece, and Bob Bateman, Doug Wallsmith and Ron Loftus added one each.

Buzhardt pitched a five-hitter and made Jim Landis' fourth-inning home run enough as the White Sox won, 1-0, to move into second place in the American League all by themselves.

Whitely Ford was a sixth-liner as the Yankees had their win streak broken at seven games.

However, Detroit Tigers and Baltimore Orioles, two teams counted on to give the Yankees trouble, both lost.

A grand-slam home run by Don Mincher and a three-run homer by rookie Bernie Allen powered Minnesota Twins to an 8-4 win over the Orioles. The Tigers lost, 6-4, to Kansas City's surprisingly tough Athletics. The winning run scored when outfielder Rocky Colavito made a stumbling catch of a long fly ball.

HANG TOUGH

Back in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals refused to be shaken off by the fast-moving Giants. Veteran south-paw Curt Simmons kept the Cards close with a seven-hit, 4-0 shutout of Houston Colts.

The Cards got only four hits but two were home runs—a two-run blast by Bill Whyte and a solo shot by Curt Flood.

Hank Aaron showed his true form with two home runs, a triple and a double—but it wasn't enough to keep Milwaukee Braves from losing, 8-6, to Philadelphia Phillies.

Two-Ball Favorites Go Out by Defaults

Sickness knocked one of the big matches out of the Victoria and district ladies' two-ball foursomes at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club yesterday and Mrs. A. Cooke was a bye into the final.

Quarter-final between Joan Lawson and Dorothy Poyntz, the defending champions, and Margaret Todd and Dorothy Naysmith was a double default, sickness reportedly sidelining both teams.

In other quarter-finals, Dr. A. Hassel-Green and Mrs. R. Fortye beat Mrs. V. Butler and Mrs. H. Matthews at the 32nd; Mrs. G. Harris and Mrs. H. G. Means defeated Mrs. C. Chapman and Mrs. C. Hart, 4 and 3, and Mrs. Jefferson and Mrs. Cooke beat Mrs. R. Saunders and Mrs. C. Holland, 6 and 5.

SEMI ON TUESDAY—In Tuesday's semi-final at Uplands Golf Club at 10 a.m., Dr. Hassel-Green and Mrs. Fortye play Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Means, winners to meet Mrs. Jefferson and Mrs. Cooke in the final.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

This weekend sees some of the lowest tides of the year from mid-mornings to noon. Just the time to go digging clams, gathering oysters, studying seashore life, or hiking in to Port Renfrew's Botanical Beach.

Miserable weather has cut fishing effort to a minimum, making it hard to get reliable reports, but a little bit of sun and warm weather could see an explosion on the freshwater scene.

If it is a top prize in the King Fisherman contest you seek, the next couple of weekends is the time to take advantage of the fall-end of the steelhead runs, because that is when the winning river trout will likely be caught.

Last year the winning 16.8-pound river trout, a steelhead came from the Salmon River at Sayward about this time of the year. Paul Despins reports the steelies are in the Salmon, which is high, but clear and fishable, and some of the anglers have been taking clean silver steelies.

The steelies should be entering the Chemsinus now, but remember the Copper Canyon pool is now under a year-round closure—and this is where many May steelies used to be taken. On the scene, there is abundant evidence some fishermen have been ignoring the closure.

Murray Cree reports the Little Qualicum in excellent condition, full of kelts, but there are still a few steelies going up and some cutthroats are being taken. Englishman River is still producing.

Frank Elliot reports the winter steelhead run is just about at an end in the San Juan, where there are a number of dark fish, but the summer-run steelies have started to enter the river and should provide continuing sport.

Lizard Lake in the Port Renfrew area, where last year's winning King Fisherman lake trout was caught, is just a bubbling with trout, but they are hard to get. After trying everything from fly to gang troll and worm, Elliot caught a 3.8-pound rainbow from Lizard on Friday on gang troll.

Barney Kent reports plenty of trout in Dougan's Lake, but most are hitting short on the Peter Ross fly. Council Lake has been slow. Prospect and Beaver-Elk Lake have been giving up a very few trout and bass to the persistent anglers. Quamichan and Somenos Lakes have been fair and the narrows of Cowichan Lake have been producing some trout.

Both bass and trout are being taken in Quennell Lake in the Cedar district near Nanaimo and lower lakes in the Nanaimo area have been fair, although the Nanaimo Lakes have been producing poorly.

Sproat Lake at Upper Taylor Arm and Twin Rivers Arm and Great Central have been producing fairly well for trollers and shore-casters.

Shallow lakes in the Campbell River area are all good for the smaller cutthroats and Upper Campbell, Middle Quinsam, Gooseneck are reported good and Buttle Lake and Quinsam River fair.

Freshwater fishermen should remember that THE 1962 FISHING LICENCE IS NOW REQUIRED.

On the saltwater scene, big salmon are few and far between although there is plenty of good blueback fishing, especially in the Portlier Pass to French Creek waters, with Northwest Bay the high spot.

Waters around Swartz Bay and James Island have been providing some good blueback sport, with a hootchie-kootchie over a Tom Mack spoon catching fish.

Indian Bay, Whittaker Point to Tod Inlet and Finlayson Arm-Misery Bay-Chesterfield Rock-Goldstream Island waters are all still good bets for spring salmon, but inclement weather has kept most fishermen off the water this week.

There have been a few bluebacks and one or two springs from Oak Bay waters, but effort has been almost nil. The local waterfront from Sooke to Oak Bay should be well worth keeping an eye on, because off the buoy at San Juan Bay, at Port Renfrew, and Sombrio Point, commercial fishermen have been taking quite a number of spring salmon, which should be working their way down the coast.

To Cut Down Ring Deaths

Return to Bare Knuckles Suggested

By JIM BECKER
MOUNT VERNON, N.Y.
(AP) — A return to bare-knuckle fighting might cut down on boxing injuries and deaths.

That was one of the suggestions today of a panel of doctors who make a close study of sports injuries. The panel reported in Medicine in Sports, a newsletter issued by the Rystan Company.

Two of the six doctors on the panel called for abolishing professional boxing. The others recommended changes.

The panel made its comments after the death of former welterweight champion Benny "Kid" Paret.

Alexius Ruchon, team physician at Cornell University, noting the frequency of "the syndrome of punch-drunkness" among professional boxers, called for an end of the professional game.

"On an amateur level, the emphasis could be shifted to the scientific, medical, with a premium on skill and dexterity rather than the knockout punch," he said. He also called for a new type of glove to cut down chances of brain injury.

WOULD BAN GLOVES
But Allan J. Ryan, vice-president of the American College of Sports Medicine, came out for eliminating gloves. He said the fist, wrapped with yards of bandages and covered with an eight-ounce glove, "assumes some of the weight and rigidity of a hammer."

The unprotected hand, he said, could not "be used with impunity against the head."

Dr. Ryan also called for outlawing professional boxing and concentrating on the amateur sport.

Max Novich, member of the New Jersey state athletic commission, blamed both television and fighters moving out of their weight class for many boxing injuries.

This was a factor in the Paret case, he said. The welterweight champion took a vicious beating from middleweight king Gene Fullmer before his fatal bout with Emil Griffith.

Naval Honors To Bergstrom

LS C. Bergstrom shot a 78 at Gorge Vale Golf Club yesterday to win the low gross championship of the third inter-ship tournament of the Royal Canadian Navy Golf Association.

AB Finnegan took low net honors with a 64 and PO Brooks had the low gross for nine holes, 38.

HMCs Naden won the team event, followed by HMCs Cape Breton and HMC Dockyard.

"This regression also happened to Bobo Olson after being stopped by Archie Moore," Dr. Novich said. Division jumping should be more closely supervised, he said, and added: "Until there is a return of the time-tested spawning of fighters in small fight clubs, all over our nation, away from the glare of television, skillful boxing will disappear entirely."

Harry A. Kaplan, a physician associated with the New York commission, said the knockout in boxing may actually be less damaging to the brain "than pummeling and exertion sustained in a 10- and 15-round bout."

Which of these fishing twins is the little brother?

The one on the left is the Merc 60, a 6 hp motor that only weighs 49½ lbs. It was the remarkable acceptance of this motor last year that gave us the idea that perhaps a little larger brother would appeal to the fishermen who wanted a roomier boat... or the extra power to take along another friend or two, or more gear.

The motor on the right weighs just 5½ lbs. more. But, it packs almost twice the horsepower! It's the Merc 110, rated at a conservative 9.8 hp. It is so light, in fact, that it weighs less than competitive engines of half the horsepower.

Like the Merc 60, it trolls like a 3, weighs like a 5½, but performs like a 12 hp outboard.

The Merc 110 is so durable that a pair of them have run full throttle for over 702 hours at Lake X without any measurable wear, and are still in service.

You must see and try these motors to appreciate them. Tell your dealer to let you try one.

You will prove to yourself that Mercury gives you more RUN for your money!

'Market Move Merely Step Toward Union'

The European Common Market is not an ultimate goal but merely a step toward a political union in Western Europe, Victoria Rotary Club was told yesterday.

MISLEADING

French Consul-General Robert Picard said it would be misleading to consider the ECM just a device meant to increase production and to improve the standard of living of the western European nations.

"Europe, being confronted with momentous problems of survival had no other alternative than to organize economically and politically," he said in a luncheon address.

'BIG UNITS'

No single European nation was today in a position to press its point.

"We live in the age of big units," said M. Picard.

"The European community, being one of them, will enable Europe to fight her way back to a leading position."

Girl Admits Credit Card Offence

An 18-year-old Richmond girl yesterday pleaded guilty to two charges of obtaining goods by false pretences.

Jennifer Lloyd-Jones was remanded for a week by Magistrate William Oester to allow preparation of a probation report and for sentencing.

USED CARD

She was charged with obtaining goods from the T. Eaton Co., Victoria, by using a charge account card belonging to a Mrs. Mary Stead of New Westminster.

CHARGES WITHDRAWN

Patrick H. Newman, HMCS Jonquiere, was found guilty of intimidation by Magistrate Oester. City prosecutor Angus Smith then withdrew charges of assault and intoxication. Newman was remanded one week for probation report.

13 Two Bodies Found

Breast Cancer Serum?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Dr. A. A. Stein of the Albany, N.Y., medical college, believes he has the answer to breast cancer control.

Dr. Stein said clinical trials of a serum which can be used on human patients to help strengthen their resistance to cancer of the breast will begin immediately.

"We'll know within a year whether we have a cancer control or not," he said. "I'm optimistic that we have."

Sea Search Pressed

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Discovery of two bodies in the water off nearby Lacey Island sparked a coastal search Thursday for other crew members of the Alaskan halibut boat Teddy J., missing and believed sunk.

The body of fisherman Fred Dubbs, 28, of Everson, Wash., was found Wednesday washed up on the island shore 16 miles west of Prince Rupert.

Another unidentified body was found in the sea early Thursday, 12 miles south of here.

Police said the bodies were from the same vessel, believed to have left Seattle on Saturday for Alaska carrying four men.

The RCAF air-sea rescue centre in Vancouver said the Teddy J. was supposed to reach Petersburg, Alaska, on Thursday.

Prowl by Night Feline's Right

A cat's right to prowl by night has been established by ancient law.

But a property owner's right to trap a trespassing tabby is also established by law.

And thereby hangs a controversy which has widened the basic schism between the pro and anti-cat camps in Victoria.

BITTER ATTACK

Pro-cat people—the Cat's Protection League—have launched a bitter attack against cat-trapping.

The campaign has gone so far as to include "highly disturbing" anonymous telephone calls and letters addressed to members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, a society member said.

At issue is the use of box traps for trapping cats—a device which lures the prowling pussy with bait that triggers a trap door.

... If He Isn't Caught

TRAPPED TABBY

Then the property owner calls the SPCA to take into custody the trapped tabby.

SPCA secretary-manager David Beeching said about one cat a month is trapped in such a fashion by property owners to his knowledge.

He said under the bylaw covering stray animals, property owners are entitled to take action against trespassing tabbies.

ONLY IF NECESSARY

Not so, says Mrs. T. W. Kerswell, secretary of the Cat's Protection League.

She says cat-trapping should only be used if "it is absolutely necessary" and then "left to experienced people."

The CPL claims the cats cannot commit trespass.

The statement has some basis in law, since a County Court case in Vancouver in 1954 saw the judge invoke a 16th-century law that a property owner could not sue a cat or its owner for damages.

The judgment said no suit could be brought against a cat using its ancient right to "pass by night."

"But there is nothing there that says a property owner can't stop them," said Mr. Beeching.

Mr. Beeching said the SPCA is not interested in picking up pet cats—only "wild" ones that breed and live in wooded areas and lumber yards.

Shop Clerks Reject Pay Offer

An offer of wage increases, annual holidays and fringe benefits has been rejected by an 84 per cent margin by members of the Retail Food Clerks' Union here and in Vancouver.

Making the offer were major B.C. shopping chain stores.

A union spokesman said the turn-down was due to the way increases were distributed.

In the biggest membership meeting ever recorded by the local in Victoria, 75 per cent of the membership turned out to vote down the offer.

Drive-In Noise Solution Sought

Late night noises and litter around two city drive-in hamburger stands came under fire at a meeting of city finance committee yesterday.

Specifically mentioned during discussions were the A and W drive-in at Redfern and Oak Bay, and the Beacon drive-in at Douglas and Beacon, opposite Beacon Hill Park.

LID ON NOISE

"I don't think, if we are going to have these things open, you can put the lid on the noise," Ald. Michael Griffin commented when the committee heard a letter from a Redfern resident, complaining about noise late at night.

"I have spent hours on this with police and other departments and the only thing is to make them close (early)."

QUESTION REFERRED

When Mayor R. B. Wilson questioned whether city council had the authority to make such drive-ins close at certain hours the whole question was referred to city solicitor T. P. O'Grady for a report.

Jayne Files But Smiles: It's Been Fun

SANTA MONICA, Calif.

Jayne Mansfield has filed for divorce in a move that stunned husband Mickey Hargitay, but later told newsmen she was "sure we will make it up."

The buxom 28-year-old blonde charged Hargitay with extreme mental cruelty and grievous mental suffering in a suit filed in superior court late today. She asked custody of their two children and her daughter by a previous marriage.

But three hours after the filing, she returned to her plush pink home on Sunset Boulevard for a face-to-face meeting with the startled Hargitay.

"We had a delightful marriage with no clashes, just minor differences," said Miss Mansfield. "We hope to make it up."

DOWAGIAC, Mich. — Don Taggart, 30, was driving along a road when the car in front of him, driven by Mrs. Odell Bounds, stalled on a railroad crossing. Taggart saw a train bearing down on her at better than 80 miles an hour. He jumped from his car and jerked Mrs. Bounds to safety seconds before the train smashed her car into a twisted hulk.

EUGENE, Ore. — Policeman Jim Guse brought his patrol car to a halt in downtown Eugene, then jumped out and began to chase a suspected thief on foot. Helplessly, he watched a Southern Pacific freight train reduce the 1960 patrol car to a twisted wreck. The fleeing suspect free for the moment, was apprehended later.

CALGARY — Dennis Gerald Anderson, 23, was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of four-year-old Deborah Knight.

VANCOUVER — Dr. Saul Bonnell, 90, practising medicine for 66 years and still active as a medical officer for the Canadian Pacific Railway, was honored at a testimonial luncheon on his retirement as a medical director of the Canadian Pacific Employees Medical Association. He was three times president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C.

MADISON — University of Wisconsin sophomore James Martin, 19, was fined $35 for stoning to death a kitten which died in the arms of its sobbing owner, Steven Klein, 7. Martin said he did not like cats.

LONDON — Heather Hanson's fiancé, Raymond Hutchinson, was sentenced to eight years in prison for a truck theft and a payroll robbery. She appealed to the judge to reduce his sentence, saying that one of the reasons for his criminal career was his desire to raise money for a big church wedding. The judge gave them permission to get married in June, but increased his prison term from eight to 10 years.

Terrorist Ring Broken

MIAMI (UPI) — Officials announced yesterday the arrest of three men they said were members of a terrorist gang who held practice sessions with rifles and grenades in the Everglades and planned a "reign of terror" in the Miami area.

One of the three, Donald Branch, 25, was charged with the Feb. 18 bombing of Miami Herald editor Don Shoemaker's home.

UNDERCOVER AGENT

State attorney Richard Gerstein said an undercover agent of the city police department discovered there were also plans to dynamite the home of Miami News editor William Baggs. Gerstein said he himself was marked for assassination.

"Members of the ring held secret meetings at which extensive plans for terrorist activities were discussed and finalized," Gerstein said. "They held practice runs in the Everglades with grenades and firearms."

Doctor Staff Of Hospital Quits in Tiff

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Albert Prévost Institute, a Montreal mental hospital, yesterday faced the problem of hiring a new medical team following the resignation of the entire professional staff because of alleged arbitrary intervention in medical matters by the hospital's administration.

City Will Play Host To Three Navy Ships

Victoria will be host to three foreign navy ships in the next four months—the British cruiser Belfast, the Chilean training schooner Esmeralda and the New Zealand cruiser Royalist.

The 600-foot Belfast, largest cruiser in the Royal Navy, will arrive at Victoria May 18.

The Esmeralda, 309 feet long and with a sail area of 26,910 square feet, will arrive about June 15.

RNZN Royalist will visit Victoria from Aug. 6 to Aug. 13.

'No Solution' for Bus Passenger Drop

There seems to be no solution to a steady decline in the number of passengers riding the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority buses in the Greater Victoria area, a Hydro spokesman said yesterday.

However, he had no comment to make on the suggestion of a bus driver the service would make money and downtown traffic congestion would be relieved if government employees left their cars at home and rode the public-owned buses to work.

Ever since the Second World War, there has been a gradual decline in the revenue of the bus industry on the North American continent and Victoria is no exception, said the spokesman.

Statistics showed the average decline was 8.53 per cent for cities of 100,000 to 250,000 in size between the first two months of 1962 compared with a similar period last year, he said.

"Greater Victoria's decline during that period was 7.4 per cent, so actually we're better off than the average."

Figures for other Canadian cities showed during the same period Regina's revenue was down 12.05 per cent, Calgary 7.32, Kitchener 6.68 and Ottawa 4.85.

"We're always looking for ways to increase passenger service but so far there doesn't seem to be a solution," said the official.

Joseph Belton, secretary of the bus drivers' union here, said: "If we could get one or two more passengers per mile that would put us in the black. That's all we need."

He said he didn't know how the government-operated bus service could get the extra passengers needed to make the service pay.

However, he said cutbacks in service or route changes do not help the situation because people will find other forms of transportation.

"You're bound to lose passengers if you take half-a-mile off a run or even if you change a route without shortening it."

Mr. Belton said there is no revenue gain from any change in the service which would result in the further loss of existing passengers.

Holiday Vote Delayed

Victoria almost had its 100th birthday, Aug. 2, declared a public holiday yesterday—almost but not quite.

During discussion on whether or not the city's 100th birthday should be a holiday, Mayor R. B. Wilson went so far as moving that a holiday should be declared, but the motion was never put to the vote.

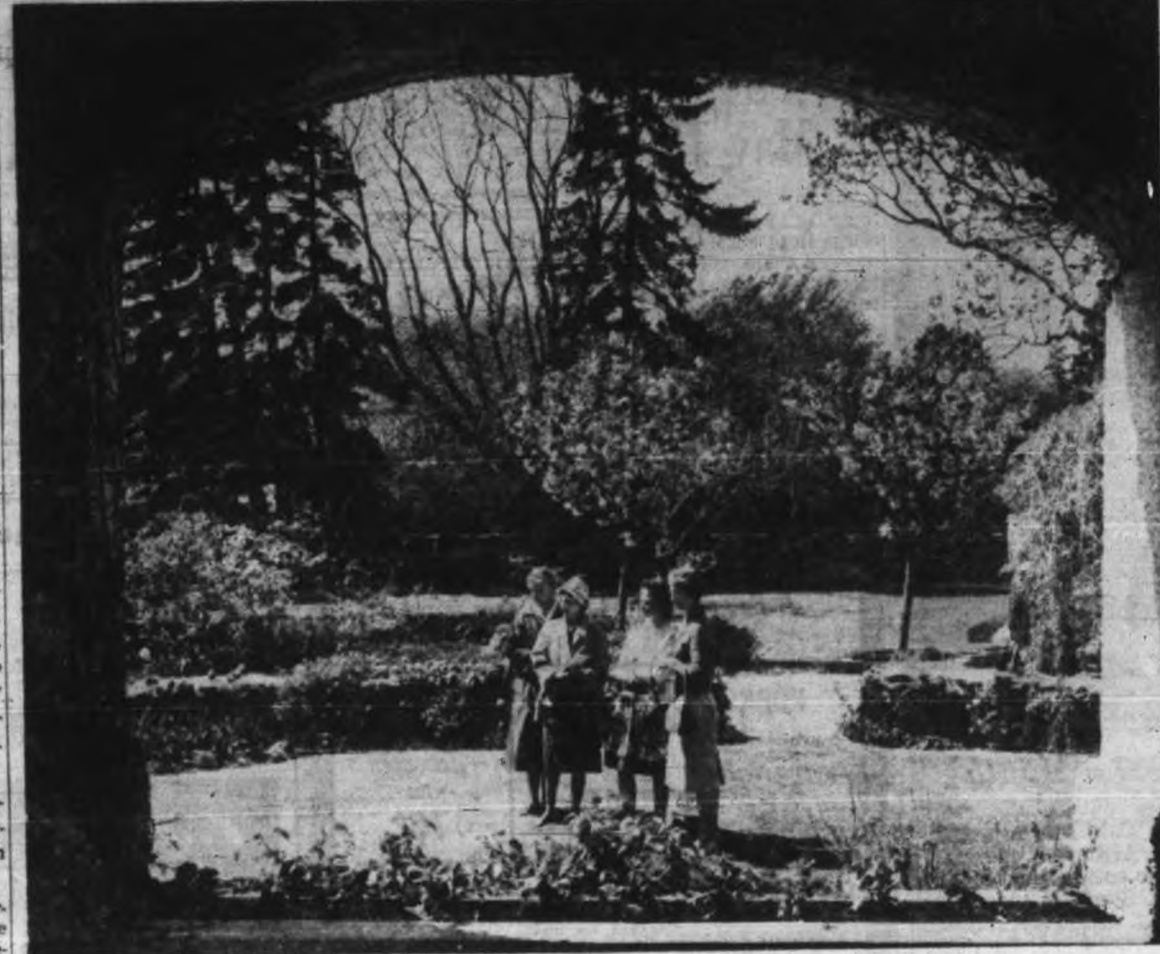

IDEAS VARY

Instead, the committee decided to think about the problem until the next meeting in two weeks.

Suggestions made by aldermen ranged from a full-scale holiday which would force retail businesses to close, a holiday for city hall employees only, a half-day holiday so stores could be open part of the day, and no holiday at all.

SOCIETY WAITS

Ald. Michael Griffin told the committee that if a holiday was declared for that day the centennial celebrations society would arrange events. He said the society is waiting to see if it will be a holiday before making any arrangements.

Curbs Urged

'City's Core Endangered'

Alarmed at deterioration of downtown Victoria as a shopping area through non-retail businesses occupying ground-level stores, Victoria Real Estate Board has warned city council that restrictions are needed.

About 25 per cent of the ground-level accommodation on Douglas Street, between Broughton and Herald Streets, is already occupied by non-retail businesses and more are expected to move into the area, the real estate board told council in a special resolution passed recently.

UNDER ATTACK

The resolution said, in part, "the downtown core is in danger of losing its essential magnetism, already under formidable attack from outside shopping centre developments, if non-retail occupancies expand without frontage restriction in prime retail locations."

A second resolution, calling for immediate steps to beautify the Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada Highway approaches to Victoria, was also sent to city council.

Pointing out that the beauty of the Inner Harbor is largely responsible for the city's reputation, the brief stresses that only a minority of visitors will arrive in the harbor in future.

ACTION URGED

The real estate board urged all interested governments and groups to "institute all possible action to ensure the continuing existence of areas of beauty on these highways and enhance them wherever and whenever possible to do so and by every means available" and added that the sponsor the work is started the less it will cost.

Spokesmen for the real estate board were all attending a convention in Vancouver yesterday.

Wrongly Treated Accused Freed By Bill of Rights

A precedent-setting judgment in magistrate's court yesterday set an accused person free because his treatment while in the hands of the police was ruled a contravention of the Bill of Rights.

Saanich police had charged that, on April 6 of this year, Lawson Gray, 4301 Wilkinson, was driving his car while his ability was impaired by alcohol or a drug.

He was brought to trial before Magistrate William O'Ster, and his defence counsel, William Moresby, entered a plea of not guilty.

DENIED HEARING

Mr. Moresby called for acquittal on grounds his client had been denied a fair hearing as guaranteed him under the Bill of Rights.

Magistrate O'Ster ruled in favor of the defence.

NOT INFORMED

The accused, he said, had not been informed promptly of the reason for his arrest and he was deprived of the right to retain counsel without delay.

The magistrate quoted at length the relevant sections from the Bill of Rights, emphasizing clauses which guarantee the right of an accused person to be told of the charges facing him, and of his right to appeal immediately for legal aid.

'WASN'T TOLD'

"Evidence in this case indicates that Mr. Gray was restrained and put in custody—but was not told what charges he faced," the magistrate said.

Crown contention had been that the accused had been fact of his arrest was dismissed by the magistrate as inadequate.

'STRICTLY APPLIED'

"Rules affecting the liberty of a person must be strictly applied to prevent injustice. Had the defendant been told what charge he faced, he might have acted in a different manner."

The magistrate took judicial notice of the defence claim that Mr. Gray's appeals for legal counsel were ignored by police until he had been subjected to a medical test of sobriety.

"Might not a further defence have been available if he had not been denied this right—a right guaranteed by the Bill of Rights?"

"It is entirely possible that if counsel had been summoned without delay and had engaged another physician, other causes might have been found for his symptoms."

Magistrate O'Ster said—so far as he knew—his decision was without precedent in Canadian criminal cases. However, he emphasized the Bill of Rights was designed to provide the protection of the law to all persons from the time of their arrest or detention.

He pointed out it was not the duty of police officers to advise an accused of his rights at the time of the arrest, nor should they be required to arrange for the attendance of counsel.

On the other hand, he ruled, the Bill of Rights imposes upon the police a duty to comply with requests in matters of right made by an accused.

If the Bill of Rights is to have true meaning, Magistrate O'Ster concluded, "it must apply in cases such as this."

While he noted his decision was reached with reluctance, in view of the evidence before him, the magistrate said he had no alternative but to dismiss the charge.

$1,500 Damage

Renovation Set Back By Elks Club Blaze

A major renovation job was given a $1,500 setback when a flash fire ripped through the main lounge of the Elks Club at 732 Cormorant Street yesterday.

Club operators set that figure on the damage last night after the blaze, fed by highly volatile floor sealer, put a temporary halt to a $10,000 renovation job to the main and upper floors of the club.

HEARD BLAST

Manager C. C. Howard, 1166 Summit, was painting some furnishings in a room at the front of the club's ground floor when he heard a muffled blast and saw the flames.

"I ran to the door of the main lounge and saw that the entire floor, which had been newly laid and just given a coat of sealer, was afire," said Mr. Howard.

He dashed to the telephone and called the fire department.

RAN INTO CLUB

Meanwhile, an employee from an adjacent building ran into the club and tried to douse the fire with an extinguisher.

The flames shot up anew after the extinguisher had been emptied, but Mr. Howard said it had served its purpose well.

A REAL HOLD

"The firemen arrived just as the extinguisher ran out," he said. "Otherwise the flames would have had a real hold."

Investigators said the doors and windows of the club were closed when the fire started. It is believed fumes from the paint sealer were ignited by a spark.

Brownie's Sales Pitch Leads to Penny Plea

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

PASSING PARADE: Housewife answered the door the other day and there stood a little girl in a Brownie uniform.

This conversation took place.

"Would you like to buy some Girl Guide cookies?"

"How do you sell them?"

"Why, I knock on doors."

"No, I mean what are you asking for them?"

"Money."

"How much money?"

"Oh, the light finally dawned. 'Just 40 cents.'"

Car, Garage Destroyed

Fire destroyed a late model car and its garage early yesterday morning at the home of Ronald Moss, 3884 Cedar Hill Road.

Saanich firemen answered an alarm about 2 a.m. but were unable to save the car or the garage. They prevented the flames reaching the nearby house or a propane gas tank.

The car, which Mr. Moss bought less than three weeks ago, was a complete write-off. It was covered by insurance.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Friend of ours, just returned from a sweep through the province reports he was somewhat taken aback by the spelling on hamburger establishments.

There were, he reports, instances of "burgers," which is correct, "burgers," and even "burghers."

The Oxford definition of the latter is "An inhabitant of a burgh, borough, or corporate town, chiefly used of foreign towns."

Well, he was in the interior—but cannibalism!

INSTANT ITEM: They say women live longer than men because paint is a good preservative!

WHAT'S IN A NAME?: During Premier Bennett's weird and wonderful press conference—this was a surprise—porter slipped the term "bucket shop" into the conversation.

Local stocks and investment dealers apparently dislike the term immensely—especially as it is a slang expression for the business houses they operate.

So we looked the term up in the dictionary.

The definition: "An unauthorized office used originally for smaller gambling transactions in grain."

Seems the word was first used in the U.S. in 1882.

Anyway there's little doubt that in Premier Bennett's opinion ion any investment dealer who doesn't do a good job selling government bonds operates a "bucket shop!"

RANDOM HARVEST:

Word has it that the Conservatives have booked Memorial Arena for May 29, which could only mean one thing—Prime Minister Diefenbaker is coming to town for a contest. Performance of his 1957 rally in the same place when 5,000 turned out to cheer. Conservative officials, however, still won't say what the plans are.

The graduating class of Royal Jubilee nurses nearly didn't make it to their gala affair at the Royal Theatre the other night when the transportation arranged for them was almost an hour late.

Jennifer Jones—no, it's not the film star—and her brother Michael, nine, are looking for pen pals here. Jennifer is 13 and lives at 13 Edinburgh Avenue, Cuerners, near Wrexham, Denbighshire, North Wales.

Increase Nullified

Saanich Budget Cut

By JACK FRY

Saanich council last night lopped $72,000 from its 1962 budget bylaw of $4,672,536.

Pared from the budget was a one-mill increase which finance committee added to the provisional budget Monday for additional road construction purposes.

Council members and municipal officials last night were unable to agree on what the reduction will mean in dollars and cents to the average taxpayer.

The new mill rates are 41.74 for school district 61 and 41.44 for district 63. This is a 1.6-mill increase for district 61 and a .12 decrease for district 63 but individual taxes will depend on last year's reassessment of land and improvements.

The deciding vote nullifying Monday's increase was cast by Coun. Robert Ostler. Before the crucial vote was called, he made it clear he is in favor of a stepped-up road building program.

He said he would vote for the tax increase unless he received assurance from the rest of the council that a capital program would be put to the public for a vote in the form of a referendum as early as possible.

MINORITY VOTE

His question was directed primarily to the men who opposed the increase Monday, Councilors Joe Casey, Harold Todd and Gregory Cook. They indicated they would not oppose a referendum.

Three council members who registered a minority vote in favor of the one-mill increase were Reeve Stanley Murphy and Councilors Robert Chard and Hugh Curtis, who supported the measure at Monday's finance committee meeting.

"Saanich has problems. Evasion is not the answer," Reeve Stanley Murphy said after the meeting.

MANY PHONE CALLS

Coun. Ostler said he had received about 100 phone calls during the past several days, all "bitterly opposed" to the increase.

A letter sent out by municipal comptroller John Tribe and not the telephone calls which influenced his vote.

After Monday's finance meeting, the comptroller had suggested that a long-range program be put to the voters, probably in the next December election.

PLANS ASKED

After settling the budget issue, council asked the comptroller to prepare several plans for a five to 10-year capital program for such things as roads, parks and recreational facilities and construction of municipal buildings.

Two Boys Hurt

Two young boys escaped serious injury when they were involved in separate, similar accidents late yesterday afternoon.

Both were riding bicycles, and in collision with cars.

Kenneth Armour, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Armour, 920 Arm, sustained a fractured collarbone and cut to the head at 5:25 p.m. at Craigflower and Dominion.

He was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and released. City police said the car was driven by George Robertson, 615 Goldstream.

Melvin Klassen, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klassen, 1464 Stroud, escaped with only slight bruises at 5:50 p.m. at Cook and McNair.

Police said the boy was riding on Cook and his bike was struck by a car driven by Gordon Greenfield, 52 Moss.

The boy was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital for examination.

Chiropractors Form Group

Dr. Gordon R. Clay of Victoria was installed as first president of the new South Vancouver Island Chiropractic Society, at a formation meeting Thursday.

Other officers installed were Dr. Edward T. Cornhill, Duncan, as vice-president and Dr. Donald J. Elder, Victoria, as secretary-treasurer.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Is there any hope or must I go on beating my brains out, talking to the wall and getting absolutely nowhere?

My husband is at least 40 pounds overweight. Herman has a heart condition, smokes two packs of cigarettes every day and gets in the car and drives a block to mail a letter. The doctor has warned him that he must take off some weight and cut way down on his smoking. Herman says life is not worth living if he can't enjoy himself. He keeps telling me he'd rather check out at 55 than celebrate 100 years of boredom.

Herman insists on two baked potatoes with his dinner. He puts three pads of butter on each potato then slops sour cream over that. If I don't make a rich dessert every night he hollers his head off. Two years ago his doctor gave me a special diet for him. I followed it to the letter. After three days he told me if I didn't lay off the rabbit food and start to cook decent meals he'd eat downtown.

Is there anything I can do about a man like this?—THE NAGGER.

Dear Nagger: There is nothing you can do for a man like that. But you can do something for yourself. Make sure Herman's insurance is paid up.

Dear Ann Landers: My friends have nicknamed me Ann Landers because I seem to be able to solve their problems. Now I have one of my own that's a beaut.

Our 18-year-old son is carrying on with the maid in our home. Hilda is 28 and somewhat attractive in an overblown, country-girl way. She is foreign born, which probably fascinates Ned. I became suspicious when Ned seemed unduly interested in whether or not Dad and I were going out for the evening, and what time we'd be back. When I heard Ned pass up a hockey game to stay at home and do nothing, I concluded that the big attraction at home was Hilda.

My husband and I returned from the movie early and I caught a glimpse of Hilda running up the stairs. They had been together in the living room which was dimly lit.

We said nothing because frankly we didn't know what to say—or if we should say anything. Please help.—UNHINGED.

Dear Unhinged: You can't remain silent in the light of what you know is going on.

The boy's father should have a man-to-man talk with Ned and explain the hazards of the game he's playing. There should be no preaching or threats—just a review of what can happen to a young guy who gets mixed up with an older woman of this type.

Of course Hilda must go. And make sure her replacement is a grandmotherly type.

Female Sculptor

Artist at Age Two

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP) — Eleanor Milne, Canada's official sculptor, did her first art work at the age of two.

"My mother gave us pencils just as soon as we could hold them and I just went on drawing," she said.

When her appointment was announced earlier this year, the 36-year-old artist became the first woman to hold the position of official sculptor.

Her preliminary work for the carvings that adorn federal buildings will be done in a sub-basement workshop of the main Parliament building.

The program of carving the elaborate cornices and arches has been going on for about 40 years and could continue for another 10, 15 or possibly 20, says E. A. Gardner, the government's chief architect.

Because much of her work is done from a ladder, Miss Milne plans to wear slacks and coveralls.

"Fortunately I don't mind heights," she said. She has even done a bit of mountain climbing. Eleanor Milne was born in Saint John, N.B. At the age of 12 she moved to Montreal where she studied philosophy and ancient history.

EDUCATION ESSENTIAL

She says a well-rounded education is important to an artist. "If you can't find the essence of a thing then you can't get concentrated power in your work."

Each art form holds some special interest for her.

Water colors could be delicate or strong and the motion of the brush was wonderful.

Mr. and Mrs. Quayle Married at Duncan

St. Peter's Church, Duncan, was the scene of the recent marriage of Mary Carol Lewers, daughter of Mrs. Betty Lewers, Duncan, and James Edwin Quayle, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Quayle, 24 Viaduct Avenue, Victoria. The bride wore a ball-length gown of white nylon sheer and Alençon lace. It featured a sweetheart neckline and lily point sleeves. Deep pink roses and stephanotis were in her cascade bouquet. For something old the bride wore her grandmother's opal pendant.

Ice-blue dresses and matching whistles were worn by the attendants, and they carried blue carriages and white chrysanthemums.

Mr. A. J. McCormack was best man and Mr. Graeme White and Mr. David Quayle were ushers for the evening double ceremony officiated by the Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh.

After a reception at the Crystal Room of the Troubadour Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Quayle left for a honeymoon in the Okanagan. Mrs. Quayle donned a navy linen dress and a daffodil yellow coat and hat with navy accessories.

The couple will make their home at 158 Robertson Street, Victoria.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. T. R. Lewers, Kelowna, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Quayle and Lynn, Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. White, Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Christopherson, Ladner, and Capt. and Mrs. D. W. Peck of Vancouver.

Fashion Preview

California designer Rudi Gernreich previewed these fashions in New York today. His line of men's sports wear features a split personality sweater, in this case one side orange and the other side beige, worn over very slim pants. For milady, this high-waisted black and white patchwork quilt dress, worn with black stockings, gives prestige to patches. It was inspired by the primitive garb worn by the rugged pioneer women of the Civil War era.

Lace Flowers, Sequins Outline Bridal Gown

First Baptist Church was the scene of the recent marriage of Jansie Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Koster, 2648 Fernwood Road and John David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shaw, 1191 Lockley Street. Tall white tapers and Easter lilies were on the altar for the candlelit ceremony. Rev. G. R. Easter officiated.

The bride who was given in marriage by Mr. J. Kroek, wore a floor-length gown of chantilly lace and nylon chiffon, with full bouffant skirt. The low waist line bodice was highlighted by a scoop neck line outlined with lace flowers and iridescent sequins. Her veil was attached to a crown of aurora borealis and her flowers were red roses.

Bridesmaids Miss Barbara Nelson and Miss Frances Shaw wore yellow and blue nylon chiffon frocks and they carried colonial bouquets of spring flowers.

Mr. Don Shaw, the groom's brother was best man and Mr. Jim Boon and Mr. Pat Green were ushers.

Tulips, daffodils and iris decorated the Boilermakers' Hall for the reception. Bud roses centred the bride's table and white heather those of the guests. Mr. J. Kroek proposed the toast.

For her honeymoon up-Island, Mrs. Shaw donned a brown suit and matching accessories. The couple will make their home at 871 Lelle Drive.

Grandma Trundled In Barrow

GULL BAY, Ont. (CP)—A crippled, 90-year-old midwife delivered the 80th baby of her career here Monday, it was reported Thursday.

Grandma Robinson was trundled to the mother's bedside in a wheelbarrow in this tiny Northwestern Ontario Indian community, 82 miles northeast of the Lakehead.

The terrain was too rough for years, ever since a fractured hip had put her on crutches.

But she was pressed back into service this time because nobody else was available. The wheelbarrow was volunteered by a villager.

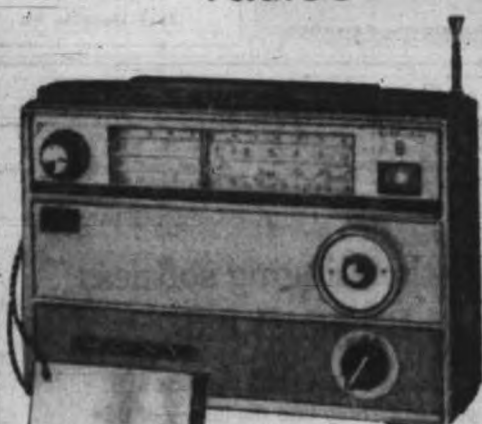

"I feel delighted to be back in action again," Grandma Robinson said after the successful delivery.

Your Bath-water feels silky-soft, your bath-soap lathers luxuriously... and both water and soap rinse away cleanly, with no sticky feeling and no bath-tub "ring". I use Calgon Bouquet in my shampoo, too... one teaspoonful in the water helps sudsing... one teaspoonful in the first rinse leaves hair soft and shiny as silk.

'Enjoyed It'

Busy Optimist Chief Claims Huge Mileage

Nearing the end of the 75,000 miles he will have travelled as president of Optimist International, Dr. Raymond Rembolt arrived here yesterday just on time to be whisked into a convention conference.

MANY POSTS. "It keeps us busy," said the president speaking for his wife Mae, who accompanies him during visits to the 37 Optimist districts in Canada and the United States.

Keen on Optimist work, Dr. Rembolt first joined in 1938 and since then has held just about every post in the organization. "There's nothing to say you have to do this to be president but it usually works out that way," he said.

The problem of keeping things going at home, where he is professor of pediatrics at State University of Iowa, while he is away on Optimist business has been minimized through experience.

"We try and schedule our travels and business as close to the weekend as possible to enable us to get back on time to start a new week," he said.

By noon June 24 when a new president is elected at the international convention Dr. Rembolt figures he will have travelled 75,000 miles on Optimist business. "I've enjoyed it," he says.

He is attending the three-day Optimist district convention at the Empress Hotel and will speak and present oratorical contest awards during a luncheon in the Crystal Gardens south ballroom today.

Opium 'Fee' $1,150

Army Clerk Changes Plea in Trial

OTTAWA (CP)—An army cipher clerk was paid $1,150 for one of four opium deliveries totalling 121 pounds while on duty last year in Indochina, his court martial was told Thursday.

But the smuggling details remained secret as the court adjourned until today to consider sentence on the clerk, Cpl. Maurice Hejor Joseph Noel, 41, of Regina, for a breach of military discipline and order.

The five-man court was on the verge of getting a 14-page handwritten statement that Cpl. Noel gave to provost officers when he suddenly changed his plea to guilty, thus keeping the statement out of the record.

Maximum punishment he can get is dismissal with disgrace. Earlier, a guilty plea on a similar charge brought Cpl. Gerald Albert West the dual penalty of 30 days in an army jail and reduction in rank to private.

DELIVERED OPIUM

The army prosecutor, Maj. James Fay, said that Noel, while serving with the truce commission in Laos and South Viet Nam last year, delivered a total of 30 kilograms of opium "or packages he believed to contain opium."

Maj. Fay said that Noel was paid 50,000 piastres and 80,000 piastres for the packages he delivered himself, to a recipient not identified in the evidence.

HIGHER FIGURE

The higher figure was the equivalent of $1,150 in American currency, Maj. Fay said.

He offered no dollar equivalent for the 50,000 piastres.

Noel, whose wife and two teen-age children live in Regina, is a member of the Saskatchewan Signal Troop. After serving in the Second World War, he rejoined the army in late 1956 and was a cryptographer with the Signals Corps in Indochina.

Navy Worker Wins Award From Board

Mr. MacKay's suggestion concerned an improved method of cargo handling in naval auxiliaries. It has been adopted for use in the Royal Canadian Navy.

WINNING CONTRACT
By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Today's East, determined not to be frustrated with his good hand, entered the auction with the unusual trump contract. This requested partner to bid his longer minor suit. In fact, East was far too weak for this bid, vulnerable, he should at least have waited to see what strength the opponents indicated. If North-South had misfired hands, the no trump bid might be just what the opponents would find a diamond and hastened to find his spades. West looked at the vulnerability, chose discretion and quietly passed.

When declarer dropped the diamond jack under West's ace, West shifted to the heart suit. Declarer took the trick with dummy's king; then led a low club. East ducked and South successfully finessed the jack. Now the trump ace was cashed and East played the jack—probably, from the bidding, a singleton.

South led the heart jack to dummy's ace, then came off the board with the last club. East rose with his ace, but had no better return than his high diamond, which declarer ruffed.

The trump king was cashed, revealing the expected break, but declarer was still home free. He played his small club and ruffed with dummy's remaining trump. West's spade king was the last trick the defense could take, and South scored his game by careful play.

Woman Astronomer:

Lots of Pleasure In Investigation Of Star Puzzle

By DAVID SCOTT

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP)—The case history of Star No. 214946 lay in an orderly stack of computations on Ruth Northcott's desk at the David Dunlap Observatory waiting for translation to manageable statistics.

The heap of neatly printed figures would have cowed even the masterminds who devise train schedules, but to the newly elected president of the Royal Canadian Astronomical Society it was just another study.

"Not that it's dull, by any means," Miss Northcott said. "Each one of these figures is like an old friend. I get a great deal of pleasure and a certain degree of excitement from investigating the stars."

Since she started her career in astronomy by chance in 1935, Miss Northcott has been snooping in the secrets of obscure stars.

Faintly glimmering No. 214946 might be just another collection of gases to the layman, but to astrophysicist Northcott it represents another piece in the mammoth jigsaw puzzle of the heavens.

The bulk of Miss Northcott's work is the interpretation of spectrographs, photographs of routes of stars as they are picked up by the 74-inch reflector telescope at this observatory 15 miles north of Toronto.

The only serious telescope peeping she has done was during the 1943-45 war years when the men were away and the work had to continue.

The major Canadian contribution to the science of astrophysics has been the determination of the velocities of stars in the line of sight.

These velocities, Miss Northcott explained, are called radial velocities and a knowledge of them plays a major part in the study of the dynamics and evolution of our star system.

Also through a knowledge of radial velocities, the orbits of double stars about each other can be examined in detail. This information is of prime importance in understanding the story of the evolution of the stars themselves.

Miss Northcott explained that about one-third of all known radial velocities have been determined in Canada where astronomy only started in 1939 at Toronto, and then only with primitive instruments.

WIDELY ACCLAIMED

Results attained by Canadian astronomers in the field of spectroscopic double-star orbits, investigation of the very hot stars in our galactic system, a study of the motions of these stars, and studies of the dust and gases of interstellar space have received international acclaim and recognition.

That briefly and simply, is part of the work done by the smiling, middle-aged woman who this year became the third woman president of the Royal Canadian Astronomical Society which was founded in 1890.

ALSO EDITOR

Miss Northcott is also editor of The Journal, the six-times-a-year publication of the Royal Canadian Astronomical Society, published since 1907.

Her dedicated life in astronomy started in 1934 when Miss Northcott was a student at the University of Toronto.

"I wanted to be a teacher, not an astronomer. But Dr. R. K. Young changed all that."

Dr. Reynolds Kenneth Young was, until his retirement in 1945, professor of astrophysics at the University of Toronto and has written numerous papers on astrophysics and the absolute magnitude of the stars.

PHOTOGRAPHS FENCES

"I was having trouble focusing the spectrograph at school and went to see Dr. Young," she said.

"He looked through my notebook and thought my figures and work in them were very neat, so he suggested I would make a good computer at the observatory which was then about to be opened."

"I took my masters degree in astronomy and came here when the observatory opened in 1935. I've been here since."

Between her lectures and hobbies this year the character of star No. 214946 comes under observation.

Detailed readings of this star were taken between 1939 and 1958. Miss Northcott said she will probably be working between now and the summer on 50,000,000,000 that exist in our galactic system alone. Similar numbers, are believed to exist in other galactic systems.

Frustrating?

"Not a bit," says Miss Northcott, "we have to start somewhere."

Shifted Load Makes a Swayback

Load shift gave a 40-foot trailer a broken back in Akron, Ohio. This is second time such a tragedy happened to driver Frank Pierce. And it probably doesn't sit too well with his boss.

Birds' Food Urge Blamed for Crash

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Birds found inside the engines of a plane which crashed in Boston, killing 62 persons in 1960, may have been attracted by sounds indicating the presence of their primary food source, the U.S. Federal Aviation Agency said.

Doctors at the FAA's civil Aeromedical Research Institute here say the sound frequency and wave form made by a Lockheed Electra are identical to those made by a swarm of crickets.

Crickets are the main food source for starlings, the birds found inside the engines of the prop-jet Electra that crashed Oct. 4, 1960, in Boston.

Pearson Agrees

Cut Campaigns John D Advises

OTTAWA (CP)—With voting day still seven weeks off, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said this week that future election campaigns shouldn't be so long.

They don't have to last as long nowadays, when aircraft can whisk party leaders across the country with ease, he said.

The way to shorten campaigns would be through adoption of a permanent voters' list which would make unnecessary the enumeration of voters before every general election.

Mr. Diefenbaker made his comments to reporters travelling with him in his chartered aircraft.

He said he has discussed this question with Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson and that Mr. Pearson holds the same view.

The prime minister said the present duration of campaigns was all right in the old days when party leaders had to travel by train. But the period is too long now that aircraft are available.

Locke Retires Soon

Limelight Picked Out Quiet B.C. Jurist Once in Long Career

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice Charles Holland Locke will retire from the Supreme Court of Canada in September after a distinguished 15-year term as a member of Canada's highest court.

The former Winnipeg and Vancouver lawyer will reach the compulsory retirement age of 75 for Supreme Court judges on Sept. 16. His successor likely will be named before the opening of the court's 1962 fall sitting Oct. 2.

PRACTICE LAW

Mr. Justice Locke will retire on pension. However, he does not plan to remain inactive and likely will practise law in a consultative capacity in Vancouver.

A quiet-spoken expert in common law, Mr. Justice Locke has been a member of the court during a period in which it has made many major and binding decisions that will govern future Canadian law.

Mr. Justice Locke and his colleagues are probably as little known as any major public figures in Canada. The nature of their work as members of the court of last resort makes it necessary for them to remain out of the public limelight.

However, in November, 1957, Mr. Justice Locke bounced into the headlines through no fault of his own.

DUNCAN LOSES

The late Lewis J. Duncan of Toronto, appearing before the court as counsel, asked that Mr. Justice Locke be excluded from a bench of five judges hearing the action. Mr. Duncan said he made the motion because he felt that for 30 years Mr. Justice Locke had entertained antipathy toward him.

The court rejected Mr. Duncan's motion, but Mr. Justice Locke withdrew voluntarily.

Mr. Duncan was fined $2,000 for contempt of court and was ordered to apologize unreservedly in open court before he would be allowed to appear before it again. He paid the fine but did not apologize before his death in Toronto.

Mr. Justice Locke is one of three Supreme Court judges who served before the court became "supreme" in fact as well as in name.

'Mice Nibbled Assets' Now Government Bites

OTTAWA (UPI)—A Moose Creek, Ont. man who claimed that mice were nibbling at his assets had a $4,200 bite taken out of them yesterday by the government.

Wilfrid Lalonde, 55, also known as Baptiste Lalonde, was fined that amount in police court for evading income tax during the years 1958 through 1960. Evidence showed that, despite the fact he asked for free legal aid, Lalonde had $110,000 in bonds, and 32 bank accounts containing $4,800.

He complained in the witness box that mice had eaten $5,000 or $6,000 of "important papers" stored in the attic.

Supreme Court Action

Decision Later On Motion To Drop BCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Decision was reserved Thursday on a motion to have the B.C. Electric Company struck out of court actions arising from the government's expropriation of the giant utility last August.

Chief Justice Sherwood Lett, in reserving decision, stated he could give no indication of when he would bring in his ruling on this request.

He also noted, for the third time in three days, that B.C. Electric is not represented in the court by counsel and said he would not be responsible for bringing this to the attention of those interested against

BY B.C. HYDRO

The motion to have the company struck out was brought by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Trial of the action brought by the B.C. Power Corporation, former parent company of B.C. Electric, will continue with the electric company remaining a party to the action while the judge considers his decision.

TRIAL OPENED

The motion to have B.C. Electric struck out was among several introduced Tuesday when trial of the corporation's case opened in B.C. Supreme Court.

The corporation seeks to have the expropriation legislation, passed at a special legislative session last August, declared invalid. It also claims that amendments to the takeover legislation and new legislation merging B.C. Electric and the B.C. Power Commission under the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority is invalid.

B.C. Peace Group Petitions U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United States was urged yesterday to halt its nuclear testing in a petition delivered to the U.S. consul-general here by delegates of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

There are now sufficient bombs stockpiled to destroy the world's entire population, said the petition. No nation or power could assume the right under any legal or moral canon "to pronounce such a sentence against mankind."

The petition added: "We urge your government most earnestly to consider this proposal and to continue and accelerate efforts to achieve peaceful solutions by study, example and negotiation, while there is yet time."

Strachan Hits Socreds For 'Growing Chaos'

KEREMEOS, B.C. (CP) — NDP-OCF provincial leader Robert Strachan said Thursday night, the Social Credit government's power policies "are so confused and changeable that no one can say from day to day what the latest brainstorm in Victoria has produced in the way of desperate confusion."

'CONFUSION'

In a speech to a political meeting here Mr. Strachan declared: "Social Credit has brought to our province an age of bumbling confusion and growing chaos."

An NDP-OCF government, he said, would introduce a clear-cut power policy, give "an honest accounting" to the people about the debt position, create a clear division of local and provincial financial responsibility and bring in a forest policy that would allow every operator equal opportunity.

RESTORE DEMOCRACY

An NDP-OCF government, said Mr. Strachan, would "restore parliamentary democracy to our legislature and put an end to government by order-in-council, government by press conference and government by cabinet decree."

Battle Not Over for IWA Chief

Daily Colonist Victoria, B.C., Fri., May 4, 1962 31

DUNCAN—International Woodworkers of America Local 1-80 President Weldon Jubenille last night seemed faced with an intense campaign within his union to retain the presidency.

Well-informed sources said the announcement last week-end of his reelection to the top post in the controversial local was premature, in view of the fact that the balloting committee had not yet filed its final report.

His reelection was announced as the result of reports that the district vote had put him 25 votes ahead of his adversary, former local IWA business agent Percy Clements.

But reliable informants said last night this resulted only from initial disqualification of some 600 votes from two operations.

Mr. Clements told the C.I.C. result of a Labor Relations Board order in the lingering dispute with Hillcrest Lumber Company, had announced earlier that he would ask for a second district election because the disqualification disfranchised 600 members.

But one union official said no second election would be necessary if the votes were allowed—Mr. Clements would be elected.

The votes were thrown out of the preliminary count because the number of votes cast exceeded the number of names on the voting roster.

No date has been set for filing of the written return of the balloting committee, but it is expected before May 13, the date set for installation of union officers.

The disputed ballots were cast at the strife-torn Hillcrest operation and at Chemainus.

Mill Shutdown Likely Soon Union Warned

DUNCAN—Hillcrest Lumber Company president Hector Stone said last night that unless labor strife in the firm's logging operation ends soon the company will shut down at the end of this month, throwing an additional 230 men out of work.

His statement came after the second day of silence from IWA Local 1-80 which has been served with a labor relations board order prohibiting the union from fostering what it termed an illegal strike.

SERVICE STOPPED

The dispute, which has idled 70 Hillcrest Lumber loggers since Jan. 2, arose when the company cut off a free bus service linking Duncan with Mesachie Lake 20 miles away.

The LRB order granted the company permission to take legal action against Local 1-80 president Weldon Jubenille for four alleged breaches of the B.C. Labor Relations Act.

UNION RESTRAINED

It contained an order restraining the union from counselling continuation of the dispute among its members.

Mr. Stone said that although the order frees his firm from its agreement with the IWA thus enabling it to hire new men to replace the 70 strikers he is reluctant to take such action.

The 70 striking loggers are the men who used the company's free bus service. Other IWA member employees stayed on the job.

Local 1-80 president Jubenille said yesterday the men are not likely to return to work defeated after being idle for four months.

He said he believes the men are prepared to stay out another four months if necessary and declined comment for the second successive day on the possibility the men would return as a result of the LRB order.

"I am sure the mill will not be shut down," he said, "the company will put the bus back on if it gets desperate enough."

Police Dog Trails Attacker

CAMPBELL RIVER—An RCMP tracking dog named Duke yesterday led police to a pile of clothing in which an unknown assailant posed as a local woman's husband before raping her.

The dog located the clothing about a block-and-a-half from the woman's home. The assault on the housewife took place at her Masters Road home late Monday.

Strawn along the road with the clothing police found the husband's hard hat, worn by the assailant, and a two-foot-long iron bar.

Bamfield Store Razed by Fire

BAMFIELD—A $20,000 fire early yesterday destroyed McCubbin's Food Market here, and living quarters above it, but rallying townspeople kept the flames from spreading.

The fire broke out at about 12:30 a.m. and within little more than half an hour the building and contents were in ruins.

Pumps and hoses were used by Bamfield residents to fight the blaze, for there is no volunteer fire department. They were able to keep the flames from spreading to the adjacent post office on one side and a home on the other.

It was the second fire at the store in 10 years.

Pipe Pins Boy

CAMPBELL RIVER—Only swampy ground saved the life of a small boy here Tuesday evening when he was pinned beneath a one-ton length of steel water pipe.

David Brown, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brown, was released from hospital yesterday suffering only bruises to his leg.

He and some small friends were playing around the pipes, being installed to increase the village water supply. One length of pipe, 18 inches in diameter and about 30 feet long, was lying at the roadside ready to be installed in a trench at 14th and Peterson road.

One child crawled into the pipe, the others pushed—and the pipe rolled over a small bank, pinning David beneath it. The youngster inside crawled out again, unhurt.

James Spiers, Campbell River naval cadet, heard the frightened cries of the children, investigated, called an ambulance and helped release the youngster.

Sven Rudman, public works superintendent, said he wonders how to prevent similar accidents.

Roads where the water-line is being installed have been closed to traffic, and parents have been asked to warn children to keep away from them. But the fascination of big pipes for small boys appears hard to overcome.

Rotten Apples Trick

CAMPBELL RIVER—It may take only one bad apple to spoil the box, as the old saying goes, but the trick can be done with more.

Local residents who paid up to $4.50 per box for apples peddled here by an unknown itinerant salesman recently are seething. Police were told that while the top layer looked fine, the second was bad and the third was cardboard.

Mine Explosion 75 Years Ago

Nanaimo Recalls Disaster

NANAIMO—Yesterday was the 75th anniversary of the coal mine explosion in Nanaimo that killed 150 men.

The explosion occurred in No. 1 mine, where only a year before a new ventilation system had been installed to promote safety.

The fire destroyed the ventilating machine, and almost all the men on the afternoon shift died of suffocation. Only seven escaped.

The mine fire continued for several weeks, while exploring parties tried to get the victims out.

Great heroism has been recorded by the rescue teams. At least one rescuer died.

In July, the attempts to recover the bodies was abandoned.

The disaster left 46 widows and 126 children.

Drivers 'Plastered' Under Present Law

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—How much liquor is required to impair a driver's ability?

The law says a driver is impaired when the alcohol level in his bloodstream reaches .15 per cent. The average 150-pound man reaches this point after drinking 12 ounces of whisky in a two-hour period.

This legal allowance is too high, says the Canadian Highway Safety Council. Executive Director W. A. Bryce said Thursday some drivers "might be plastered" at that level.

So next week the council will introduce a resolution at its annual meeting in Regina calling for a reduction in the permissible alcohol level to .05 per cent. It says this will give the 150-pounder a limit of four ounces of whisky in two hours.

Allied with this will be suggestions that it be mandatory for drivers to give breath samples when requested at the scene of an accident and that these tests be admitted as legal evidence. Furthermore, the federal government, and not the provinces, should make these laws.

Saskatchewan is the only province now requiring drivers to submit to breath tests. If they don't agree, they cannot retain a licence.

The value of auto seat belts will be examined in a mock trial, complete with invited magistrates.

There are at least two other resolutions which should provide lively debate for the 250 delegates who will go to Regina Monday from government, industry, transport, police and other organizations.

One will recommend that all provinces require drivers to be 17 years old before getting a licence. Four provinces already do this, but the other six issue licences at 16.

Mr. Bryce said he would like to see age limits brought in line so nationwide training courses can be planned.

Dogs, Cats Perish By Arson

SUDBURY (CP)—About 40 dogs and 13 cats were found dead Thursday in the Sudbury pound after a fire believed to have been set deliberately. Police said the front door was kicked in and an arsonist apparently set fire to a chesterfield in the small room.

Saturn-Size

6-Stage Rocket Lofted Titov

(AP, UPI)

WASHINGTON — Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov said Thursday the giant rocket that whirled him into space had six stages, all powered by liquid propellants. He also said he controlled his capsule by manual means alone during two of his 17 orbits around the earth last August.

Titov's statement at an international space science meeting was the first Russian report on the number of stages of the rocket.

He indicated that the general power of the rocket was of the same order of the United States' still-under-development 1,500,000-pound thrust rocket — the Saturn which has been tested but has not been used in any flight.

MAXIMUM THRUST
He said that the maximum thrust of all six engines of the launching rocket was 800,000 kilograms. A kilogram is about two pounds.

The astronaut said he controlled his space ship entirely by hand during the second and seventh orbits of his 17-orbit flight.

SIGNIFICANT
His report that the launching rocket used liquid propellants entirely was considered significant because this was the first disclosure of the makeup of the rocket's propulsion.

Titov also said that he and U.S. astronaut John Glenn believe the mysterious "fireflies" they saw in space were caused by fuel droplets from gulf-ance jets on their capsules.

FUEL DROPLETS
Titov told the science meeting that he and Glenn discussed the space "fireflies" during an early morning sighting tour they took of the capital.

He said both think they may have been caused by fuel droplets from altitude control jets on their capsules — an indication that the spacecraft may have been similar in at least that respect. Titov added, however, that the matter was still under study.

JOINT VENTURE
During the sightseeing stop at the Washington Monument, one of their first stops, Titov appeared fascinated by the elevator that takes visitors to the top. As it started rising, he told Glenn: "This is the first joint Soviet-American venture into space."

Titov and Glenn wound up at the White House, where President Kennedy — officially welcomed the beaming Russian spaceman to this country and congratulated him on his orbital flight of Aug. 6, 1961.

ARMS WRANGLE
At a joint news conference later, the two space travellers got into a diplomatic wrangle over disarmament.

The issue came up when Titov was asked when Russia would release photographs.

City Soreads Pick Audain As Candidate

A Social Credit nominating convention last night picked retired businessman James Audain as the Victoria federal constituency's contender in the June 18 federal election.

At the same time, party stalwarts articulated what will likely become their candidate's basic platform as the campaign gets under way.

Mr. Audain, former civil servant and investment broker, and a long-time Victoria resident, sounded the theme during his speech of acceptance.

'Rebel' Princess Becomes Ruler

NEW DELHI (AP) — A princess who defied tradition to marry a commoner has become the successor to her father, the Maharaja of Indore, who died last December.

The government of Prime Minister Nehru Thursday recognized the princess as Her Highness Maharani Usha Devi of Indore.

When she was married to an army officer instead of a man of royal blood her father blessed the marriage. But most members of the family opposed it, some contending it would bar her from succeeding to the throne.

She will receive an annual privy purse of 500,000 rupees ($105,000), one-third the amount received by her father, the late Maharaja Yeshwant Rao Holkar.

CABACAS (Reuters) — Real Iriyogyan, 23, was taken to hospital Thursday after a seven-hour fit of uncontrollable laughter after hearing a joke.

Doctors stopped the laughing with sedatives and Iriyogyan was kept in the hospital with severe stomach pains.

The joke was not disclosed.

First Hurdle For 'Telstar'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House yesterday overwhelmingly approved a bill to set up a private corporation — Telstar — that would orbit communications satellites for transmitting television shows, telephone conversations and telegrams around the world.

The two scientists said the hereditary changes, which made the seeds grow more rapidly than normal, must have been caused by the whole "complex of flight factors."

These include the stresses of lift-off and powered flight and re-entry into the atmosphere, and the state of weightlessness which exists during orbital flight.

Parlo and Gagenko reported on space flight effects at the third international space science symposium of the world Committee on Space Research.

Concerning the future of space travel, they noted that a living organism and its environment constitute an "inseparable unity." Therefore, to prepare mankind for the time when space travel will become commonplace, they said scientists now should "try to reveal hereditary changes, and adaptive phenomena which always accompany the evolutionary process wherever it takes place."

In addition to seeds, spores, human tissue cultures, and a host of small laboratory animals, six dogs scooted the flight pain subsequently taken by Gagarin and Titov.

Four dogs stayed aloft 24 hours, two for about 90 minutes.

Parlo and Gagenko said these flights caused no pathological reactions among the dogs. One of them, Strelka, has since twice produced pups "which turned out to be healthy and developed normally."

The Soviet scientists suggested that the next biological investigation of flight beyond the earth should be carried out in "new space paths." By this they apparently meant orbits which would carry spacecrafts into the radiation zone and perhaps beyond.

But they noted that genetic changes occurred in seeds which had previously been placed in orbit for periods of 90 minutes to 24 hours. These changes could not have

'Terror Must End'

ALGIERS (AP) — In the wake of the Secret Army's worst terror wave, the French government Thursday night promised a stern crackdown on European extremists seeking to block Algerian independence through bloody chaos.

Christian Fouchet, French high commissioner to Algeria, in a radio-TV address to Algeria's 1,000,000 European settlers, said he has given rigorous anti-terrorism directives to Gen. Michel Fourquet, supreme military commander, and to the chief of the Algiers police.

"If these measures do not prove sufficient," he warned, "they will be followed by more rigorous measures."

BLOOD BATH

Fouchet's address came on the heels of Wednesday's blood-bath in which 110 persons were killed and 147 wounded. Most were Muslim victims of the Secret Army.

But even as the government moved to contain violence, terrorist attacks continued Thursday.

At least 12 Muslims were killed during the day.

The deteriorating situation has obviously alarmed Paris authorities. President de Gaulle held long talks with Premier Pompidou and Louis Joxe, minister for Algerian affairs.

He told about 500 residents of this pulp and paper assembly in a standing-room-only theatre audience that Trade Minister Lites predicted an increase in the favorable trade balance this year of $300,000,000 and said this was based on estimates before the government's action announced Wednesday.

UP FIVE PER CENT

He said the earlier prediction was that exports would grow by five per cent this year, while imports would increase by two per cent. He recalled that Canada recently showed the first favorable balance of international trade in 10 years.

Earlier he told a local television audience the fixed discount on the Canadian dollar would mean more jobs and more prosperity for every part of Canada.

Belmont High School Association voted last night following a stormy, three-hour meeting with Sooke School Board, to maintain Belmont Senior High and neighboring Elizabeth Fisher Junior High School under one principal.

Heated exchanges between rival factions on the school board highlighted the meeting, which at one point saw a motion from the floor to oust the entire board.

The mover, who won applause but saw his motion tossed out by association chairman J. T. Craig, suggested the entire board be asked to resign "in view of the fact they can't get along."

Two motions that did emerge, amended and much debated, called for the minister of education to intercede and call an election to fill vacancies on the school board, and for the school board to hold off any change in the administrative setup at the two schools.

The vacancies to be filled on the board are those left by chairman J. S. Williams, who resigned in protest over the proposed change in administration, and R. J. Wain, who has moved from the district.

Mr. Wain, who leaves the board at the end of the month, spearheaded the faction calling for the change.

He died almost instantly.

Stormy Sooke Session Votes for One Principal

Belmont High School Association voted last night following a stormy, three-hour meeting with Sooke School Board, to maintain Belmont Senior High and neighboring Elizabeth Fisher Junior High School under one principal.

Heated exchanges between rival factions on the school board highlighted the meeting, which at one point saw a motion from the floor to oust the entire board.

The mover, who won applause but saw his motion tossed out by association chairman J. T. Craig, suggested the entire board be asked to resign "in view of the fact they can't get along."

Two motions that did emerge, amended and much debated, called for the minister of education to intercede and call an election to fill vacancies on the school board, and for the school board to hold off any change in the administrative setup at the two schools.

The vacancies to be filled on the board are those left by chairman J. S. Williams, who resigned in protest over the proposed change in administration, and R. J. Wain, who has moved from the district.

Mr. Wain, who leaves the board at the end of the month, spearheaded the faction calling for the change.

CABACAS (Reuters) — Real Iriyogyan, 23, was taken to hospital Thursday after a seven-hour fit of uncontrollable laughter after hearing a joke.

Doctors stopped the laughing with sedatives and Iriyogyan was kept in the hospital with severe stomach pains.

The joke was not disclosed.

First Hurdle For 'Telstar'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House yesterday overwhelmingly approved a bill to set up a private corporation — Telstar — that would orbit communications satellites for transmitting television shows, telephone conversations and telegrams around the world.

The two scientists said the hereditary changes, which made the seeds grow more rapidly than normal, must have been caused by the whole "complex of flight factors."

These include the stresses of lift-off and powered flight and re-entry into the atmosphere, and the state of weightlessness which exists during orbital flight.

Parlo and Gagenko reported on space flight effects at the third international space science symposium of the world Committee on Space Research.

Concerning the future of space travel, they noted that a living organism and its environment constitute an "inseparable unity." Therefore, to prepare mankind for the time when space travel will become commonplace, they said scientists now should "try to reveal hereditary changes, and adaptive phenomena which always accompany the evolutionary process wherever it takes place."

In addition to seeds, spores, human tissue cultures, and a host of small laboratory animals, six dogs scooted the flight pain subsequently taken by Gagarin and Titov.

Four dogs stayed aloft 24 hours, two for about 90 minutes.

Parlo and Gagenko said these flights caused no pathological reactions among the dogs. One of them, Strelka, has since twice produced pups "which turned out to be healthy and developed normally."

The Soviet scientists suggested that the next biological investigation of flight beyond the earth should be carried out in "new space paths." By this they apparently meant orbits which would carry spacecrafts into the radiation zone and perhaps beyond.

But they noted that genetic changes occurred in seeds which had previously been placed in orbit for periods of 90 minutes to 24 hours. These changes could not have

Nasser Badly Wounded Says Mid-East Report

NASSER

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Telegraph says that according to reports circulating in the Middle East President Nasser of the United Arab Republic has been shot by an assassin and badly wounded. The Telegraph describes the reports as "strong."

The reported assassin, the newspaper says, was Ali Amer, brother of Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, commander-in-chief of U.A.R. armed forces.

"The reports say President Nasser is in hospital in a serious condition," the newspaper says. "There has been no official statement."

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The United States won agreement from Britain, France and West Germany Thursday night to continue explorative talks with the Soviet Union aimed at reaching a Berlin settlement, informed sources reported early today.

The desirability of continued U.S. sounding-out tactics was made apparent at a dinner given by U.S. State Secretary Rusk for Foreign Minister Schroeder of West Germany, Foreign Secretary Home of Britain and Foreign Minister Couye of Murville of France.

SMOOTHED OVER

The dinner discussion followed a luncheon at which Rusk and Schroeder had smoothed over U.S. and West German tactical disagreements over the divided city surrounded by East Germany.

The get-together came on the eve of the annual spring session of the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The NATO foreign ministers, who are to begin closed meetings later today, are certain to give their approval to the U.S. initiative on Berlin.

FRENCH JOIN IN

Even the French, who have previously held somewhat aloof from President Kennedy's Berlin explorative policy, were reported to have joined fully in Thursday night's discussions.

Prior to the dinner, West German sources said they had been assured "there would not be any settlement on Germany and Berlin that would not be in line with the interests of West Germany and could not be approved by the West Germans."

Will Space Alter Man's Evolution?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Russian scientists suggested the possibility yesterday that space travel in the long future may change man's hereditary patterns and alter the course of human evolution.

The scientists, V. V. Parin and O. G. Gagenko of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said cosmonauts Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov survived their brief space flights with no apparent damage except for Titov's temporary "numbness" during 25 hours of weightlessness.

But they noted that genetic changes occurred in seeds which had previously been placed in orbit for periods of 90 minutes to 24 hours. These changes could not have been caused by radiation, the scientists said. The flight path was well below the radiation zone which rings the earth.

These include the stresses of lift-off and powered flight and re-entry into the atmosphere, and the state of weightlessness which exists during orbital flight.

Shamrocks Victimized, 23-0 In League's First Shutout

NEW WESTMINSTER—Les Norman of New Westminster, all-star goalie every season since he stepped into senior competition in 1959, made lacrosse history here last night, blanking Victoria Shamrocks, 23-0, to post the first shutout in the history of the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

With his teammates in devastating form in this meeting of the league's two unbeaten clubs, Norman was a coldly efficient master in the net, stopping 27 shots. Meanwhile, the Royals were pouring 63 shots at Gordie Johnston, who went all the way in goal for Shamrocks.

DON HAD ONE—Only one other shutout is listed on the league records. That one was in the 1961 playoffs, when Don Hamilton of Vancouver beat Brampton, 13-0, in the third game of the Mann Cup Canadian final.

Shamrocks went into the battle for first place without Tom Collett, Don Ashbee and Skip MacKay, and were out of their depth from the start against a club that looks even stronger than it did last year when it opened with 13 straight victories.

It was 6-0 at the end of the first quarter, 11-0 at the half, and 13-0 going into the final 15 minutes. Royals gave Norman plenty of help, but refused to play defensive ball in that last quarter, romping through the Rocks for eight more goals.

PARNELL TOPS—Paul Parnell, who went from Shamrocks to New Westminster last season, scored five goals. Mike Gagne, Bill Wilkes and Cliff Sepka each scored three, rookie Jim Watson, Charlie Saunders and Dave Torgot two apiece, and Bob Bateman, Doug Wallsmith and Ron Loftus added one each.

Referee Earl McDonald and Jack Northup handed out a total of 22 minutes in penalties, 14 to Victoria and eight to New Westminster. Royals scored on all four of their power plays, but Shamrocks, with MacKay and Collett missing from their power play, couldn't take advantage of the extra man. Norman came into the league from junior ranks in 1959 and shared rookie-of-the-year honors with Victoria's Jim McNeill. He and Johnston were co-holders of the all-star goalie award.

In 1960, Norman shared the honor with Vancouver's Stan Joseph. Last year he was unanimous choice as all-star, this time by himself.

League play continues tonight, when Nanaimo plays Norburn in Vancouver. Shamrocks' next game is against Vancouver Tuesday, in Vancouver.

Victoria 3 3 0 0 6
Vancouver 2 2 0 0 4
Nanaimo 1 1 0 0 2

Last night's scores: VICTORIA 0-23 New Westminster. Goalies: Norman (Shamrocks), Johnston (Royals).

JOHNNY POTT took the first-round lead yesterday in the Waco open golf tournament with a five-round-par 68 over the 7,080-yard course.

Leftwinger Bill MacFarland of Seattle topped Pott as the most valuable player in the Western Hockey League, getting 271 points in the balloting to 241 for runner-up Doug Barkley, Calgary defence star.

Gorge Blows 2-0 Lead Accepts Draw—Gorge Hotel and Hourigan's Kickers, who went down to the last decimal to decide the league champion, proved just as evenly matched in the Victoria and District Football League playoffs.

Kickers, down 2-0 in the early going, came back to tie Gorge, 2-2, at Royal Athletic Park, forcing a replay of their sudden-death semi-final.

A goal by centre-forward Mel Cooper with less than one minute remaining gave Kickers the tie, and both clubs refused to play overtime. Tom Lowmyer and Russ Ball scored for Gorge and Bob Maraden got the first Kickers goal.

They met again Sunday at 1 p.m. at Central Park in the first half of a playoff double-header. Evcoes and Duncan played the other semi-final at 3 p.m.

Age Limit Changed For Junior Golfers—Because there is some doubt about what the age limit for the Canadian junior golf championship will be, the Royal Canadian Golf Association has changed the age limit for the May 13 city junior championship at Victoria Golf Club.

All golfers who have not reached their 19th birthday on June 30 this year will be permitted to enter. However, those whose birthday falls between June 30 and Sept. 15 will enter with the understanding that they may not be eligible to play in either the B.C. or Canadian championships.

HANG TOUGH—Back in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals refused to be shaken off by the fast-moving Giants. Veteran southpaw Curt Simmons kept the Cards close with a seven-hit, 4-0 shutout of Houston Colts.

The Cards got only four hits but two were home runs—a two-run blast by Bill Whyte and a solo shot by Curt Flood. Hank Aaron showed his true form with two home runs, a triple and a double but it wasn't enough to keep Milwaukee Braves from losing, 8-9, to Philadelphia Phillies.

Palmer Tied At Las Vegas—LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The traffic in par golf was jammed at the top Thursday as four named professionals, led by favored Arnold Palmer, wound up the first round of the $5,000 Tournament of Champions.

Twenty-eight players, each the winner of a major tournament in the last 12 months, toured the 7,000-yard par 36-72 Desert Inn Country Club course.

When the firing was over 14 players were sandwiched in a tight spread between 69 and 72 strokes. One stroke back of the leaders were Sam Snead, the defending champion; Doug Ford, Gary Brewer and Joe Campbell.

George Knudson, a native of Winnipeg playing out of Toronto, was tied for 23rd place with a score of 75-six strokes off the pace.

Tied at 71 were Phil Rodgers, Jay Hebert, Jack Fleck, Jerry Barber and Butch Baird, who lost three strokes to Earl on the last three holes.

At 72 were Gene Littler, Paul Stewart and Australia's Bruce Crampton.

Palmer practically apologized for his round, blaming his driving. He was in the rough five times and "missed at least four short putts."

Snead led after nine holes with a 33.

Giants, Cards Roll On But Yanks Muff Lines

San Francisco Giants didn't miff a line again yesterday but New York Yankees forgot about the hitting. Big Jack Sanford had two shaky moments, when Dick Schofield and pinch-hitter Larry Elliott hit two-run homers, but he became the eighth successive San Francisco starting pitcher to go the distance as the Giants supported him with a 16-hit attack which brought them their ninth win in a row—8-4 over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Four runs in the eighth inning—on an error by Dick Groat, singles by Jim Davenport, Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda and a double by Chuck Hiller—broke a 4-4 tie. However, Sanford spoiled another San Francisco streak, somewhat overlooked in the attention paid to hitting and pitching. His wild throw in the third inning was the first error for his club in nine games and 335 chances.

The Yankees got even better pitching but, for the second time this season, fell prey to the deadly Chicago battery of Buzhardt and Carreon. Buzhardt pitched a five-hit fourth-inning home run enough as the White Sox won, 1-0, to move into second place in the American League all by themselves.

Whitey Ford was a six-hit loser as the Yankees had their win streak broken at seven games.

Big Men Talk Big Is Unawed Reply—NEW YORK (AP)—"Big men usually make big talk. In the ring it may be a little different."

World heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson made the comment Wednesday after challenger Sonny Liston of Philadelphia said he would knock out Patterson in three or four rounds when they meet—somewhere—in September. Liston opened his training camp in the Catskill Mountains Wednesday.

"It's a strange thing about a person's outlook," Patterson said in a telephone interview. "When I meet a fighter at a weigh-in or some place else, like when I met Liston at the boxing 'writers' dinner, they seem to me to be twice my size."

"Then, when I get in the ring with them, I feel twice their size. I've had that happen to me since my amateur days. It's always the same."

"Liston can say anything he wants but he's not going to scare me. Talk is cheap and means nothing. What happens in the ring is what counts. We'll see then."

Patterson is more concerned about setting on a site for the fight, which New York turned down.

Age Limit Changed For Junior Golfers—Because there is some doubt about what the age limit for the Canadian junior golf championship will be, the Royal Canadian Golf Association has changed the age limit for the May 13 city junior championship at Victoria Golf Club.

All golfers who have not reached their 19th birthday on June 30 this year will be permitted to enter. However, those whose birthday falls between June 30 and Sept. 15 will enter with the understanding that they may not be eligible to play in either the B.C. or Canadian championships.

The Cards got only four hits but two were home runs—a two-run blast by Bill Whyte and a solo shot by Curt Flood. Hank Aaron showed his true form with two home runs, a triple and a double but it wasn't enough to keep Milwaukee Braves from losing, 8-9, to Philadelphia Phillies.

City Will Play Host To Three Navy Ships

Victoria will be host to three foreign navy ships in the next four months—the British cruiser Belfast, the Chilean training schooner Esmeralda and the New Zealand cruiser Royalist.

The 600-foot Belfast, largest cruiser in the Royal Navy, will arrive at Victoria May 18.

The Esmeralda, 309 feet long and with a sail area of 28,910 square feet, will arrive about June 15.

RNZN Royalist will visit Victoria from Aug. 6 to Aug. 12.

Ballot Battle Not Over for IWA Chief

DUNCAN—International Woodworkers of America Local 180 President Weldon Jubenville last night seemed faced with an intensive campaign within his union to retain the presidency.

committee had not yet filed its final report.

His re-election was announced as the result of reports that the district vote had put him 25 votes ahead of his adversary, former local IWA business agent Percy Clements.

But reliable informants said last night this resulted only from initial disqualification of some 600 votes from two operations.

Mr. Clements told the Colonist from Kelowna last night that if the disqualification is not sustained in the balloting committee's formal report, he would be the winner.

One source said the former business agent would have a margin over Mr. Jubenville of "at least 154 votes and probably more" if the 600 ballots are put back in contention.

Mr. Jubenville, currently facing possible court action as a result of a Labor Relations Board order in the lingering dispute with Hillcrest Lumber Company, had announced earlier that he would ask for a second district election because the disqualification disfranchised 600 members.

But one union official said no second election would be necessary if the votes were allowed—Mr. Clements would be elected.

during the preliminary counting of ballots because the number of votes cast exceeded the number of names on the voting roster.

No date has been set for filing of the written return of the balloting committee, but it is expected before May 13, the date set for installation of union officers.

The disputed ballots were cast at the strife-torn Hillcrest operation and at Chemainus.

Holiday Vote Delayed

Victoria almost had its 100th birthday, Aug. 2, declared a public holiday yesterday—almost but not quite.

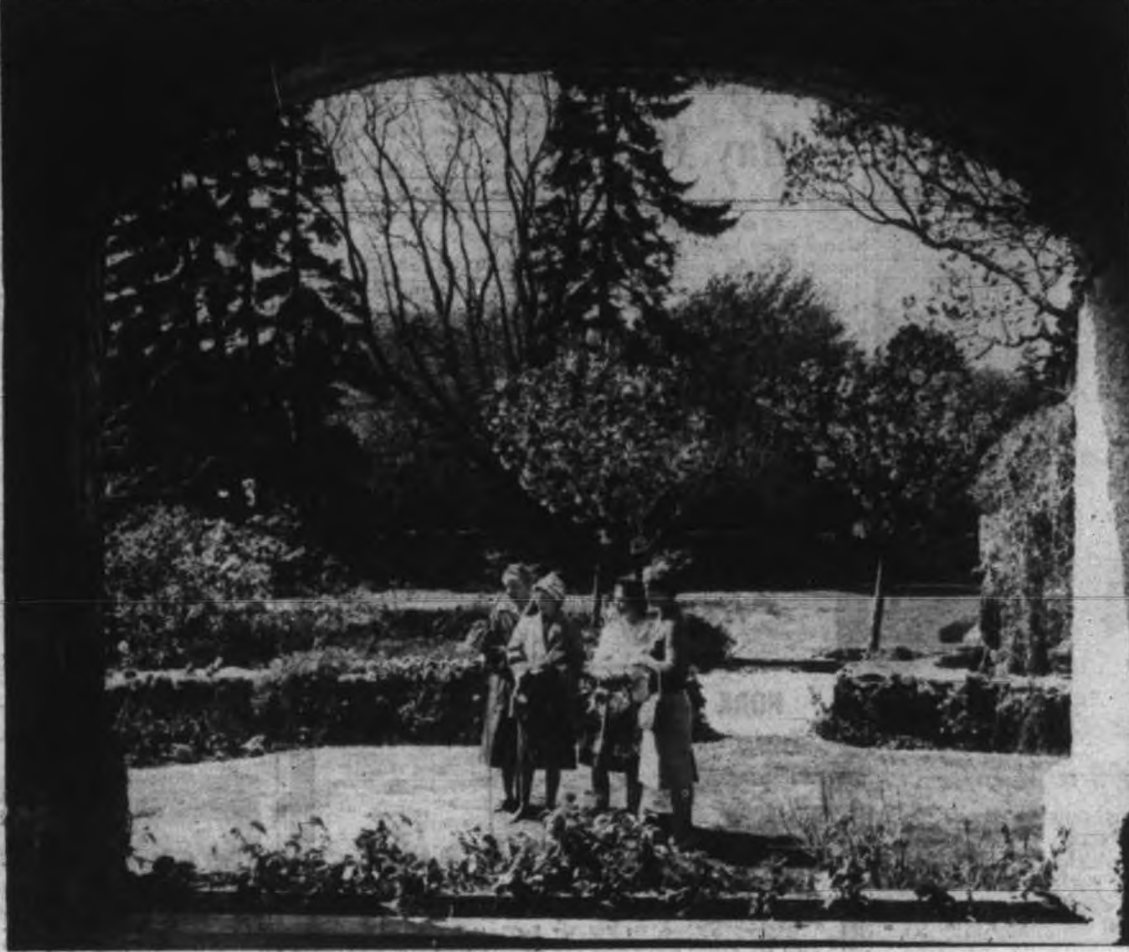

During discussion on whether or not the city's 100th birthday should be a holiday, Mayor R. B. Wilson went as far as moving that a holiday should be declared, but the motion was never put to the vote.

IDEAS VARY

Instead, the committee decided to think about the problem until the next meeting in two weeks.

Suggestions made by aldermen ranged from a full-scale holiday which would force retail businesses to close, a holiday for city hall employees only, a half-day holiday so stores could be open part of the day, and no holiday at all.

Ald. Michael Griffin told the committee that if a holiday was declared for that day the centennial celebrations society would arrange events. He said the society is waiting to see if it will be a holiday before making any arrangements.

'City's Core Endangered'

Alarmed at deterioration of downtown Victoria as a shopping area through non-retail businesses occupying ground-level stores, Victoria Real Estate Board has warned city council that restrictions are needed.

About 25 per cent of the ground-level accommodation on Douglas Street, between Broughton and Herald Streets, is already occupied by non-retail businesses and more are expected to move into the area, the real estate board told council in a special resolution passed recently.

'UNDESIRABLE'

The resolution said, in part, "the downtown core is in danger of losing its essential magnetism, already under a formidable attack from outside shopping centre developments; if non-retail occupancies expand without frontage restriction in prime retail locations."

A second resolution, calling for immediate steps to beautify the Patricia Bay and Trans-Canada Highway approaches to Victoria, was also sent to city council.

Pointing out that the beauty of the Inner Harbor is largely responsible for the city's reputation, the brief stresses that only a minority of visitors will arrive in the harbor in future.

"The splendor of the present image and renown will decline proportionately to the attractiveness of its access highways."

ACTION URGED

The real estate board urged all interested governments and groups to "institute all possible action to ensure the continuing existence of areas of beauty on these highways and enhance them wherever and whenever possible to do so and by every means available" and added that the sooner the

Mill Shutdown Likely Soon Union Warned

DUNCAN—Hillcrest Lumber Company president Hector Stone said last night that unless labor strife in the firm's logging operation ends soon the company will shut down at the end of this month, throwing an additional 230 men out of work.

His statement came after the second day of silence from IWA Local 180 which has been served with a labor relations board order prohibiting the union from fostering what it termed an illegal strike.

SERVICE STOPPED

The dispute, which has idled 70 Hillcrest Lumber loggers since Jan. 2, arose when the company cut off a free bus service linking Duncan with Mesachie Lake 20 miles away.

The LRB order granted the company permission to take legal action against Local 180 president Weldon Jubenville for four alleged breaches of the B.C. Labor Relations Act.

UNION RESTRAINED

It contained an order restraining the union from counselling continuation of the dispute among its members.

Mr. Stone said that although the order frees his firm from its agreement with the IWA thus enabling it to hire new men to replace the 70 strikers he is reluctant to take such action.

FIRM RELUCTANT

He said many of the 70 have been with the company for long periods and that for this reason the firm has been reluctant even to cancel the seniority rights of individual employees although this could have been done nearly four months ago under terms of the contract with the union.

Drastically reduced logging crews at the company's timber stands since the first of the year has resulted in the depletion of log stocks.

STAYED ON JOB

The 70 striking loggers are the men who used the company's free bus service. Other IWA members employed stayed on the job.

Local 180 president Jubenville said yesterday the men are not likely to return to work defeated after being idle for four months.

He said he believes the men would return as a result of the LRB order. "I am sure the mill will not be shut down," he said, "the company will put the bus back on if it gets desperate on the possibility the men enough."

$1,500 Damage

Renovation Set Back By Elks Club Blaze

A major renovation job was given a $1,500 setback when a flash fire ripped through the main lounge of the Elks Club at 732 Cormorant Street yesterday.

Club operators set that figure on the damage last night after the blaze, fed by highly volatile floor sealer, put a temporary halt to a $10,000 renovation job to the main and upper floors of the club.

HEARD BLAST

Manager C. C. Howard, 1106 Summit, was painting some furnishings in a room at the front of the club's ground floor when he heard a muffled blast and saw the flames.

"I ran to the door of the main lounge and saw that the entire floor, which had been newly laid and just given a coat of sealer, was afire," said Mr. Howard.

He dashed to the telephone and called the fire department.

RAN INTO CLUB

Meanwhile, an employee from an adjacent building ran into the club and tried to douse the fire with an extinguisher.

The flames shot up anew after the extinguisher had been emptied, but Mr. Howard said it had served its purpose well.

A REAL HOLD

"The firemen arrived just as the extinguisher ran out," he said. "Otherwise the flames would have had a real hold."

Investigators said the doors and windows of the club were closed when the fire started. It is believed fumes from the paint sealer were ignited by a spark.

David Brown, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brown, was released from hospital yesterday suffering only bruises to a small boy here Tuesday evening when he was pinned beneath a one-ton length of steel water pipe.

He and some small friends were playing around the pipes, being installed to increase the village water supply. One length of pipe, 18 inches in diameter and about 30 feet long, was lying at the roadside ready to be installed in a trench at 14th and Peterson road.

One child crawled into the pipe, the others pushed—and the pipe rolled over a small bank, pinning David beneath it. The youngster inside crawled out again, unhurt.

James Spiers, Campbell River naval cadet, heard the frightened cries of the children, investigated, called an ambulance and helped release the youngster.

Even Rudman, public works superintendent, said he wonders how to prevent similar accidents.

Roads where the water-line is being installed have been closed to traffic, and parents have been asked to warn children to keep away from them. But the fascination of big pipes for small boys appears hard to overcome.

Police Dog Finds Assault Clues

CAMPBELL RIVER — An RCMP tracking dog named Duke yesterday led police to a pile of clothing in which an unknown assailant posed as a local woman's husband before raping her.

The dog located the clothing about a block-and-a-half from the woman's home. The assault on the housewife took place at her Masters Road home late Monday.

Strewn along the road with the clothing police found the husband's hard hat, worn by the assailant, and a two-foot-long iron bar.

Police said the hat and the husband's clothing had been taken from a shed outside the home.

The articles found by the dog have been sent to Nanaimo, where they will be examined for fingerprints.

The woman was shaking out curtains on the back porch of her home when an unidentified masked man wearing her husband's work clothes pushed her inside, switched off the light and assaulted her. He fled when his victim's daughter cried out.

Bamfield Store Razed by Fire

BAMFIELD — A $20,000 fire early yesterday destroyed McCubbin's Food Market here, and living quarters above it, but rallying townspeople kept the flames from spreading.

The fire broke out at about 12:30 a.m. and within little more than half an hour the building and contents were in ruins.

Pumps and hoses were used by Bamfield residents to fight the blaze, for there is no volunteer fire department. They were able to keep the flames from spreading to the adjacent post office on one side and a home on the other.

It was the second fire at the store in 10 years.

Mine Explosion 75 Years Ago

Nanaimo Recalls Disaster

NANAIMO—Yesterday was the 75th anniversary of the coal mine explosion in Nanaimo that killed 150 men. The explosion occurred in No. 1 mine, where only a year before a new ventilation system had been installed to promote safety.

The fire destroyed the ventilating machine, and almost all the men on the afternoon shift died of suffocation. Only seven escaped.

The mine fire continued for several weeks, while exploring parties tried to get the victims out.

Great heroism has been recorded by the rescue teams. At least one rescuer died.

In July, the attempts to recover the bodies was abandoned.

The disaster left 66 widows and 126 children.

As an additional attraction, Duncan Potter's Mrs. Marjorie Speer and Douglas Ford displayed ceramics and artist Ellef Haxthow showed a group of wood carvings.

6-Stage Rocket Lofted Titov

Cosmonaut Titov addresses space scientists.

(AP, UPI)

WASHINGTON — Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov said Thursday the giant rocket that whirled him into space had six stages, all powered by liquid propellants. He also said he controlled his capsule by manual means alone during two of his 17 orbits around the earth last August.

Titov's statement at an international space science meeting was the first Russian report on the number of stages of the rocket.

He indicated that the general power of the rocket was of the same order of the United States' still-under-development 1,500,000-pound thrust rocket — the Saturn which has been tested but has not been used in any flight.

MAXIMUM THRUST

He said that the maximum thrust of all six engines of the launching rocket was 800,000 kilograms. A kilogram is about two pounds.

The astronaut said he controlled his space ship entirely by hand during the second and seventh orbits of his 17-orbit flight.

SIGNIFICANT

His report that the launching rocket used liquid propellants entirely was considered significant because this was the first disclosure of the makeup of the rocket's propulsion.

Titov also said that he and U.S. astronaut John Glenn believe the mysterious "fireflies" they saw in space were caused by fuel droplets from guidance jets on their capsules.

JOINT VENTURE

During the sightseeing stop at the Washington Monument, one of their first stops, Titov appeared fascinated by the elevator that takes visitors to the top. As it started rising, he told Glenn: "This is the first joint Soviet-American venture into space."

Titov and Glenn wound up at the White House, where President Kennedy officially welcomed the beaming Russian spaceman to the U.S. and congratulated him on his orbital flight of Aug. 6, 1961.

ARMY WRANGLE

At a joint news conference later, the two space travellers got into a diplomatic wrangle over disarmament.

The issue came up when Titov was asked when Russia would release photographs.

INTELLIGENCE GOOD

U.S. officials declined to say how much information on preparations was secured, but asserted that the intelligence was good.

In addition, these officials said, psychological factors seemed to favor resumption of Russian tests while the United States is still engaged in its Pacific series of nuclear blasts.

By beginning while the U.S. tests are in progress, the Russians will not bring down upon themselves as much world condemnation as if they waited until the U.S. program was over.

NO SPECIFIC IDEA

Soviet Premier Khrushchev has said several times that Russia must hold another series of tests because the United States is testing, but he has not given any specific idea as to when they might begin.

The U.S. tests, which began April 23, were ordered by President Kennedy after more than three years during which the U.S. government held off such experiments.

The president, in ordering the resumption, said the new series was necessary because of "substantial gains" the Russians made in their massive blast last fall which broke the three-year moratorium on nuclear testing.

Stormy Sooke Session Votes for One Principal

Belmont High School Association voted last night following a stormy, three-hour meeting with Sooke School Board, to maintain Belmont Senior High and neighboring Elizabeth Fisher Junior High School under one principal.

Heated exchanges between rival factions on the school board highlighted the meeting, which at one point saw a motion from the floor to oust the entire board.

The mover, who won applause but saw his motion tossed out by association chairman J. T. Craig, suggested the entire board be asked to resign "in view of the fact they can't get along."

Two motions that did emerge, amended and much-debated, called for the minister of education to intercede and call an election to fill vacancies on the school board, and for the school board to hold off any change in the administrative setup at the two schools.

The vacancies to be filled on the board are those left by chairman J. S. Williams, who resigned in protest over the proposed change in administration, and R. J. Weir, who has moved from the district.

Mr. Weir, who leaves the board at the end of the month, spearheaded the faction calling for the change.

Trainer Killed By Kick

VANCOUVER (CP)—Veteran trainer Curly Hugh McIntyre, 32, died Thursday after he was kicked by a thoroughbred horse at Lansdowne Park in suburban Richmond.

McIntyre had been leading the horse onto a track for transport to the Exhibition Grounds and today's start of the Vancouver racing season when it lashed out with both hind hooves and struck him in the chest. He died almost instantly.

What's Wrogn Here?

This book has even the low-down laughing. Christie the cocker spaniel was shipped by his tracks on Newport Avenue between Oak Bay Avenue and Windsor Road yesterday when he and his master spotted this house-size blunder. One motorist, unable to believe his eyes, turned around a block past not spotting error so he could come back for a second look. (Colonist photo.)

Will Space Alter Man's Evolution?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two Russian scientists suggested yesterday that space travel in the long future may change man's hereditary patterns and alter the course of human evolution.

The scientists, V. V. Parin and O. G. Gerasimov of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, said cosmonauts Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov survived their brief space flights with no apparent damage except for Titov's temporary "sickness" during 25 hours of weightlessness.

But they noted that genetic changes occurred in seeds which had previously been placed in orbit for periods of 80 minutes to 24 hours. These changes could not have been caused by radiation, the scientists said. The flight path was well below the radiation zone which rings the earth.

The two scientists said the hereditary changes, which made the seeds grow more rapidly than normal, must have been caused by the whole "complex of flight factors." These include the stresses of lift-off and powered flight and re-entry into the atmosphere, and the state of weightlessness which exists during orbital flight.

Parin and Gerasimov reported on space flight effects at the third international space science symposium of the world Committee on Space Research.

Concerning the future of space travel, they noted that a living organism and its environment constitute an "inseparable unity." Therefore, to prepare mankind for the time when space travel will become commonplace, they said scientists now should "try to reveal hereditary changes, and adaptive phenomena which always accompany the evolutionary process wherever it takes place."

In addition to seeds, apes, human tissue cultures, and a host of small laboratory animals, six dogs aced the flight path subsequently taken by Gagarin and Titov. Four dogs stayed aloft 24 hours, two for about 90 minutes.

Parin and Gerasimov said these flights caused no pathological reactions among the dogs. One of them, Streika, has since twice produced pups "which turned out to be healthy and developed normally."

The Soviet scientists suggested that the next biological investigation of flight beyond the earth should be carried out in "new space paths." By this they apparently meant orbits which would carry spacecraft into the radiation zone and perhaps beyond.
